JUDGE HOLDS O'HARA FOR GRAND JURY

By JAMES J. DELANEY
(Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent)

West Warwick, R. I., Sept. 17—Walter E. O'Hara, president and managing director of 'Gansett, was adjudged "probably guilty" on a charge of criminal libel in the fourth district court here today and was held for the grand jury.

Talent Quest Chief To Be Interviewed

By ANN MARSTERS

Things are in a terrific whirl these days. It seems that everywhere I look I see an M-G-M talent scout.

They take up at least half the room in my office—and the other half is taken up by photographs which the talent scouts are diligently wading through, one by one.

Not that I'm complaining about it. It's an exciting kind of activity—and all the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials are tremendously enthusiastic about the results, so far, of the New England Talent Quest.

And we are expecting a lot more results before the deadline arrives next Sunday night. Please don't forget that your application and photograph must be mailed in or before midnight of the 19th.

PICTURES STUDIED

If you have already become an entrant in the Quest, it would be most gratifying to you, I'm sure, could see how carefully each photograph is studied and considered. Last evening, a number of mail-

Moscow, Sept. 17 (AP)—The execution of a soldier and his father-in-law, convicted of selling to a naval warehouse at Sebastopol, in the Black Sea, was reported as the latest purge of the extensive spread widely through the Soviet military.

Another execution was reported from Vladivostok, where the man was shot for embezzlement of 214 rubles (about $22,600) from the lumber trust. Three others were given 10-year prison sentences for the same offense.

GENERAL COLE LEADS 50,000 IN PARADE

With hundreds of thousands lining the streets, marching feet and martial music resounded throughout downtown Boston today as nearly 50,000 persons paraded in observance of Constitution Day.

The parade, led by Adjutant-General Charles T. Cole, was one of Boston's greatest spectacles in this city's impressive observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution.

Church and civic officials were joined in make the celebration one of the greatest in the history of the Commonwealth.

As thousands gaily marched, massed bands played stirring martial music and more powerful than was ever assembled in the country roared the men who, with the Constitution as government a century and a half ago, Boston was first. Historical figures, in costume, reminiscent of Old Glory in the breeze.

The parade, starting here at dawn from public buildings, business

At Charlestown Navy Yard the historic frigate Constitution joins in celebrating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the immortal American document for which she was named. MISSING SINCE HER ARREST WITH LONG

A 21-year-old Maine girl may have been a third victim of Howard Long, alleged sex-slayer of two New Hampshire boys, the Boston Evening American learned exclusively today.

Long, it was revealed for the first time today, was arrested for drunkenness at Revere Beach on the night of August 27 with a young woman who described herself as Olive Fall of Ludman, Me.

This arrest came only 11 days before the body of Mark Neville Jensen, 10-year-old Laconia, N. H., boy, was found brutally murdered in the woods a few miles from his home.

At the time of his arrest in the Jensen case the 21-year-old prisoner was in possession of a [illegible] piece of cotton dress material.

Police today disclosed the cloth was like the garment found on another sent him to exchange.

New Hampshire and Massachusetts authorities admitted today they have been unable to find the girl.

BOTH RELEASED

She and Long were arraigned in Chelsea District Court, when the drunkenness charges were placed on file August 28.

It was further disclosed that Long is his ward community as [illegible] Me.

At the same time, County Sheriff Thomas Mellreal of Dover, N. H. declared he was anxious in an effort to establish whether she is still alive.

Mellreal entered the Long case when the grewsome [illegible] responsibility in the death of Raymond Nadeau, 10, of Dover, early [illegible]

WANTED HIS CAR

Long and the girl were arraigned by Policewoman Mary C. Mahoney and Detectives George W. Arnold of the Metropolitan District Police. Found on Revere Beach parkway, Long told the officers he was going for his car.

"Then, and then—"

"Oh, no, you're not."

Massachusetts authorities and Police Chief George Hubbard of Laconia were also investigating the new development today.

Gunmen Hold Up 9 Girls in Lowell Miss $6000

Lowell, Sept. 17—Holding nine girl clerks at bay, three men, one of whom wore dark glasses and was armed, attempted to hold up the Berkley Shoe Co. in Jackson street shortly before noon today, but fled, missing a $6000 payroll.

The bandits ran out of the office after one of the clerks, Miss Penelope Diamond, told them that the girl who had the combination to the safe containing the payroll was out to lunch.

The thug with the gun vaulted over the counter and tried to open the safe but was unsuccessful. The trio then dashed out into a waiting automobile.

Miss Eleanor Crowe, another clerk, called police while several other girls ran to the window and got the registration of the machine.

NAZIS CONFIRM SCHACHT 'OUT'

Berlin, Sept. 17 (AP)—The definite disappearance of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht's wizard hand from the direction of Nazi economic policy appeared to have become a reality today with revelation that he and his aides have moved out of the economics ministry building.

Business men, inquiring of competent government officers, were told that the man once considered Germany's financial magician "no longer has any influence."

He is now in Italy on a "private trip," it was said here. His resignation or removal has long been rumored, and it is known he has not set foot in the economics ministry for about six weeks.

yield pre-eminence in observance of the anniversary.

Here, where American patriots first shed their blood in defense of the liberties which the United States Constitution perpetuated, modern-day patriots, by tens of thousands, turned out to pledge their support and allegiance to the democratic government based on the Constitution's enlightened and enlightening precepts.

Into the city, well before noon, began moving much of the huge parade which started in Back Bay at 3 p. m.

SOME MAY MARCH

Their mechanical brigade clanking alongside over city cobblestones, a battalion of regular army tanks rolled northward to their assigned station, ready to join the huge procession.

In Cambridge was forming the parade's second single unit, 5000 strong, purposed to march across the Charles river via the Massachusetts avenue bridge to find its place in the seemingly endless Boston column.

From every section of the state came school children, patriotic societies, business and municipal floats, veterans' organizations and military bodies, bearing time-honored names and carrying battle flags, some of which were famous even before the American Revolution.

Expected the parade still to be in progress at nightfall, city employees and special Guardsmen were hurried down early in the job of installing more floodlights along Commonwealth avenue.

With all new leaves cancelled, every available police officer on duty, and many on special assignment, the city's police department for the day undertook to push assignments being made in all districts handling crowds and traffic.

EMERGENCY STATIONS

First aid stations were established at points all along the route of march, it was announced that downtown business will be almost entirely suspended by starting time of parade.

Police Commissioner Joseph P. Timilty announced that he had increased to 40 the number of radio cars in use.

Special provision has been made to protect motorists from the dust and dirt throughout the line of the parade, it was announced by Mrs. A. Sundberg of Somerville, chairman of the committee on safety.

During intermission at noon, a band concert, continuing to parade time, is planned.

Elaborate fireworks, on Boston Common tonight, will wind up the official observance here.

State and federal support of today's anniversary observance here was solidified.

This was the Commonwealth's first participation in any Constitution Day celebration. Governor Hurley and the state committee in charge of activities expended much to make the occasion successful.

N. H. School Strike Still On; Battle Over Hours

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 17 (AP)—A strike of several hundred Nashua High School students against longer hours moved into its third day today, even as parents of 520 students requested the board of education to meet pupils' demands and reduce school hours.

The request took the form of a petition to the board through Acting Police Chief Frank Burke.

Frank H. Clancy, president of the board, brushed it aside with the comment that he stuck to his previously announced stand not to consider such a petition until the new hours were given a "fair trial."

Meanwhile ranks of the strikers shrunk as 60 returned to the high school and 100 to the junior high school.

A full page advertisement in the Nashua Telegraph, contributed by interested citizens, came out squarely behind the board of education in its refusal.

Dean Pound Urges New Vigilance

Warns Constitution And U. S. Indivisible

Chicago, Sept. 17 (INS)—Declaring the Constitution and the United States are indivisible, Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school declared public vigilance in behalf of the Constitution must increase with growing government power.

"The stronger the central executive, the more danger there is from attempts of groups to impose upon their neighbors their ideas of life as well as to impose their economic demands at the expense of others," he stated.

Speaking before a "Constitution Week" dinner of the Chicago Bar Association, the famous educator said there cannot be a United States of America without its fundamental charter of rights.

"There may some day be other government on this soil," he said. "We may become Balkanized, as seems to be the tendency of the times, or we may set up a dictator, which is another tendency of the times. But they will not be the United States—except perhaps in name."

Delaware Joins In National Holiday

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 17 (AP)—Delaware, the first state to ratify the Constitution, today celebrated the 150th anniversary of the signing of the governmental charter.

Exercises were held in public and private schools. A "Constitution Tree" was planted in each of the three counties at Dover, New Castle and Georgetown, by school children.

GUEST OF HONOR

Mrs. Grace Coolidge (above), widow of the late President Calvin Coolidge, accepted Governor Hurley's invitation to watch today's Constitution Day parade from his reviewing stand in front of the State House.

Old North Church Tablet Unveiling

MARKS 150TH ANNIVERSARY

"It is the British march
By land or sea from town tonight
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch
Of the North Church tower, as a signal light:
One if by land, and two if by sea."
—Longfellow's "Midnight Ride of Paul Revere."

In a mossy, grassed enclosure beneath the tower of the Old North Church there will be unveiled today a bronze tablet to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States.

April 18, 1775, was the day that Old North Church became the historic symbol of the American Constitution. In the soft dusk, Robert Newman, sexton of the church, waited in the tiny house on Salem street for word on maneuvers of the British regulars. Once warned he was ready to ascend the tower and signal Paul Revere, waiting across the harbor, bundled in a cape and standing under a starless sky.

20 DELEGATES

Today at 3:15 p. m. more than 200 delegates from American patriotic societies, including Governor Charles F. Hurley of Massachusetts will gather in the memorial court, a miniature park built and kindled by funds donated to the Old North Church.

The services will be under the direction of the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution and taking part in the program will be the Rev. Francis E. Webster, rector of the famous church; Miss Lelia Hurd, historian of the Sigsal Lantern Society; the Lexington Minute Men and the Continental Color Guard.

A plaque beneath the tablet is inscribed to United States Senator George Hearst of California and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, mother and father of William Randolph Hearst, noted American publisher.

Among the guests at the ceremony will be William Randolph Hearst, Jr., publisher of the New York Journal-American and grandson of the American couple honored.

TABLET INSCRIPTION

The inscription on the tablet reads:

"This tablet is placed here in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States of America, by which the people of these United States pledge themselves to form a more perfect union, establish justice, ensure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessing of liberty for themselves and their posterity; in order that government be of, for and by the people so that it should not perish from the earth."

The frame below the tablet reads:

"In honour of George Hearst and Phoebe Apperson Hearst, who were inspired by and exemplified in their lives the ideals and principles of true Americanism as embodied by the founding fathers in the Constitution, their son, William Randolph Hearst, gave the above tablet."

George Hearst was a pioneer in the development of the great West and was one of that sturdy group of factors who drove the foreign traders on the Pacific Coast and who established the California.

KEPT IN STEP

Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst devoted her life to the cultivation of American ideals among the earliest pioneers in the new state of California and to charitable activities.

Towering over the rather strange and freshlooking pair, Old North Church is as alive today as it was over 200 years ago when the first congregation, gowned in lace and ruffles, entered its doors.

It has kept in step with the hand of time changing the contour of the neighborhood.

It has nurtured a chapel which

A tablet commemorating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution will be unveiled today in a little wall-enclosed grass plot at the foot of this historic Boston landmark, the Old North Church, where were hung the lanterns which sent Paul Revere on his famous ride. Present at today's exercises will be 200 notables, including officials of city, state and nation.

The Old North Church, which is the successor to the first church, or edifice of King's Chapel, which also stands on Tremont street, in 1723 King's Chapel had become inadequate for the zealous Episcopalians of that day and site for the new edifice in the North End.

OPENED IN 1723

The newly self-determined Rev. Samuel Myles, pastor of King's Chapel, laid the cornerstone and dedicated the work:

"May the gates of hell never prevail against it."

It was opened for public worship December 29, 1723.

The design of the original tower is attributed to William Price, who lived nearby, although the interior of the church follows the work of the famous British architect, Sir Christopher Wren.

In 1804 a gale roared over Boston, whipped off the steeple which had been a landmark in the incoming mariner. It was partly restored in 1807.

SCENE OF EXERCISES

STATE Leaders Laud DAY

Notables of nation, state and city joined today in expressing, through the Boston Evening American, their warm indorsement of popular celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution.

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. sounded the keynote of the day when he said:

"I am glad of an opportunity to add my voice, through the columns of your estimable paper, to those of others, who are attempting to bring to the people of our country a realization of the precious heritage that has come down to us from our forefathers —the Constitution of the United States.

FUNDAMENTAL LAW

"It is the charter of the government under which we live; it is the guarantee of the liberties and privileges which we enjoy; it is the fundamental law under which our country has grown and prospered for more than a century and a half.

"No tyrant can rule us so long as this immortal document shall live."

"All too many of our people have become indifferent to its significance, and it is well that in these days when one assault after another, either directly or by devious methods, is made upon it that there should be an awakening, ere it is too late.

"No man can deny the fact that the United States is a great nation because we are different from any nation on earth—because our government is different from that of any other government—ours is a constitutional government.

"If the Constitution of the People is to be changed let it be by the people."

Other statements given the Boston Evening American today in endorsement of the celebration of Constitution Day were as follows:

United States Senator Frederick Hale of Maine said:

"When the President's court-packing legislation met with defeat in the Senate many of its opponents felt that that issue was disposed of permanently and that no further efforts would be made by the Executive to interfere either with the courts or the Constitution which have kept us a nation of free men and free women."

CANNOT EXIST

"The basis for that belief is, I fear, unfounded, and it is unfounded for the simple reason that under the Constitution as interpreted by a high-minded and independent Supreme Court the centralized collectivist government advocated by the President and his advisers cannot exist."

United States Senator Wallace White, Jr., of Maine, stated:

"Our Constitution records those powers granted to the people by the Federal government and defines the limits of this governmental authority over them. It denies the right of government to take away their freedom of act of mind and of spirit. It assures the maintenance of individual and of minority rights against the aggressions of temporary majorities and elected representatives.

"It is the sure guarantee that there shall be preserved in America local self-government, the rights and powers of our states as responsible units of government and a government of, by and for the people. These will vanish in the destruction of our Constitution either by direct or by disguised assault upon it."

Mayor John D. Lynch of Cambridge said:

"The Constitution of this country has proved itself, through its history, as the guardian and protector of individual rights and liberties.

"The difficulty with constitutional government in America is that we all talk about the Constitution and few of us understand it. In the words of John W. Davis, it is nothing more than a rule of life governing the relations of individuals and states to a federal government predicated by justice and calculated to promote domestic tranquillity and national defense.

"As mayor of the City of Cambridge I have urged and insisted that the children in the schools of my city, from the age of understanding, be taught these great fundamentals upon which our democracy was predicated. If all the schools of the nation bespeak understanding of that document, we need never fear for the preservation of our country."

CURLEY'S STATEMENT

Former Governor James M. Curley said:

"Throughout the Nation today the people of the United States observe the Sesquicentennial of their Constitution—the basic, fundamental law of the land. The supremacy of the whole world joins, quietly if necessary, in the observance.

"This birthday party is truly psychologically timed. Our Constitution has been exposed to 'the storms and tempests' predicted by John Marshall, it is challenged today by radical or selfish interests which would either destroy or impair it. We must be on guard. Not lightly should it be tampered with and the amendatory machinery appealed to. Its adaptability to new conditions has been proven. The provisions for amendment are ample."

Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, states:

"The Boston Chamber of Commerce is thoroughly in accord with the plan for celebrating the 150th anniversary of the birthday of our Constitution.

"The chamber hopes that every effort will be made to impress the importance of this event on every member of the community."

Gen. W. Sibley Hadlai, State Director of Civilian Defense, said:

"The thanks of all our citizens should be given to the Boston American for its outstanding efforts in recent times in the defense of our Constitution. I shall be happy if I may contribute in any measure to this defense.

"Liberty is regarded as the most priceless heritage of the human race by the common assent of mankind. To preserve liberty and to provide a frame of government under which a nation of free men may live is the sole objective of our Constitution, and any attack upon it cannot be delayed from the convening of the General Court [illegible]

"Confidence requires definite knowledge and belief concerning principles, purposes, methods, aims, and our Constitution, with its provisions and traditions for the separation of the government into administrative, legislative and judicial branches has in the past allowed all our citizens to have confidence that the proper checks and balance of power thus provided would always protect their individual interests."

Read Document Signed 150 Years Ago

Pupils of the Warren School, Charlestown, joined in this fitting observance of Constitution Day—reading aloud the great document, signed 150 years ago, the document which has for a century and a half guaranteed American citizens democratic government and enjoyment of their personal liberties. Francis Murphy and John Fitzpatrick are holding the flag as pretty Violet Farrell takes her turn as reader. Sixth grade pupils, at their desks, are listening attentively.

Along the Sidelines

Two outstanding units in the parade make their debut on Boston streets today.

The Metropolitan District police, numbering over 200 in their horizon blue uniforms and the Reserve Officers, composed of former members, march for the first time as a unit.

Patrick J. Moynihan, State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, Marshal of the Fourth Division, through the Boston Evening American, calls upon members of his organization to participate in the parade and report at Beacon and Dartmouth streets, not later than 4 p. m.

Following the conclusion of the parade, a monster fireworks display lasting for more than one hour will be held in Boston Common.

The fireworks will be set off in the baseball field. Several historical events will be reenacted through the special display pieces constructed for this occasion.

Observation stations will be located on the following streets:

Boston Common—Charles street, near Beacon.

Commonwealth avenue at Hereford street.

Commonwealth avenue at Fairfield street.

Commonwealth avenue at Dartmouth street.

Commonwealth avenue at Berkeley street.

Copeland's Fall Tammany Blow

New York, Sept. 17 (INS)—Tammany leadership took a severe beating in New York city's primary election.

Returns today showed that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and Jumes Jeremiah T. Mahoney are the parties choice to battle it out for the mayoralty in the general election in November.

Tammany's anti-New Deal representative, Senator Royal S. Copeland, sustained a crushing double defeat.

Copeland lost by almost 2 to 1 to LaGuardia on the Republican ticket, and was beaten only a little less badly by Mahoney on the Democratic ticket.

It was a clean-cut New Deal victory. Mahoney not only is an avowed New Dealer, but he had the support of James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, himself a Tammany man.

Furthermore, LaGuardia—elected four years ago as a Fusionist—has been sympathetic toward the Roosevelt administration. He was elected in a crusade to crush Tammany's power following the scandals in the administration of Jimmy Walker.

The trouncing Copeland was given shook Tammany to its very foundation today.

It was a smashing blow to former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who advocated Copeland and took the stump for him.

It caused talk that Christopher D. Sullivan, leader of Tammany, may be forced to resign. Tammany is now torn asunder. Sullivan became head of the Wigwam only recently, following the death of James J. Dooling.

It was a personal triumph for Jim Farley and raised his prestige within Tammany. There were strong hints that Farley may now reach out and put Tammany in the bag.

Poll Official Loses Tally Sheets in "Holdup"

New York, Sept. 17 (INS)—Three gunmen today held up the chairman of a district election board in a subway station, and robbed him of tally sheets showing the district vote in yesterday's primaries. The chairman, George Medina, told police.

"One of them drew a gun and the others held their right hands in their pockets, as though also armed. They took all the tally sheets and ran."

She said she planned another flight but refused to disclose its source.

ASKS O'BRIEN QUIT MAYOR RACE PLAN

Declaring that his candidacy is ridiculous and can only result in the election of a Republican former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today demanded that Thomas C. O'Brien abandon plans to enter the mayoralty contest.

"O'Brien cannot win," the veteran Democrat said.

"His candidacy is ridiculous. He must know that he cannot win. It must be apparent to every true Democrat that entrance of O'Brien into this contest at this late date will serve only to weaken the other candidates of our party and assure the election of Malcolm E. Nichols.

"Nichols and his political associates tricked the Democrats of Boston in 1925 and for four years a minority Republican group dominated the political scene.

"O'Brien ran fifth in a field of 10 candidates in 1925. He received only 9443 votes.

"It must be remembered that the Democratic majority in Boston is only 2 to 1. The field is now crowded with Democratic candidates. Entrance of another, in the person of O'Brien, will settle the outcome of this contest and return the Republican Mr. Nichols to City Hall."

By FRANK K. REILLY

District Attorney William J. Foley and former Governor James M. Curley ran neck and neck today in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser mayoralty straw vote poll.

A scant handful of votes kept the Suffolk County prosecutor from the top of the ticket.

For the second consecutive day Foley headed the list of candidates in the tabulation of ballots.

Former Governor Curley made his power felt shortly after the beginning of the tabulation when he ranked fourth in the list of votes received today. He was topped in addition to Foley, by School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin and by former Representative Alfred Santosuosso.

TOBIN IN THIRD

Tobin remained in third place but at a considerable distance behind Foley and Santosuosso continued as the fourth strongest candidate.

President John I. Fitzgerald of the Boston City Council improved his lead over former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and the men continued to run fifth and sixth places respectively.

Carleton L. Brett of Dorchester held seventh place in the vote by a wide margin and former Representative Francis X. Coyne, also of Dorchester, was a weak eighth today.

Other candidates received a light vote and indications are that some of them may drop out of the contest by 6 p. m. next Tuesday the deadline established by the municipal election commission for filing of nomination papers.

Friends of Maurice J. Tobin were jubilant today as they announced the great interest that many supporters of Congressman John P. Higgins, Governor Hurley's nominee for Chief Justice of the Massachusetts superior court, were climbing on their band wagon now that it is definitely established that the West End leader is out of the necessity contest.

ON SAIL TONIGHT

The moonlight sail of members of the Tobin group, originally scheduled for last Monday and postponed then because of weather conditions, will take place tonight. The party will sail from Howe's Wharf at 8 p. m. aboard the steamer Town of Hull.

Campaign directors of former Governor Curley announced that scores of Higgins supporters have enrolled under their political banner.

"Many men and women who were members of the Higgins organization have joined the Curley forces in the past 24 hours," it was stated today by Thomas F. Galvin at a meeting of Curley workers at 22 Province street. "I am convinced that the great bulk of the Higgins campaign committee will have joined us within the next 48 hours."

Offices of the East Boston Civic League last night announced their endorsement of the candidacy of former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

Charles L. Manser, the most recent subject into the mayoralty tender race, opened campaign headquarters at Hotel Bellevue. His today were circularizing registered Republicans with a view to creating greatest campaign committees in any section of the city. Manser stated that branch campaign offices will be opened throughout the city about October 1.

URGED TO VOTE

Manser desired a fair vote in today's tabulation of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser straw ballot poll.

All readers of these newspapers are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity to cast a paper vote for their favorite candidate. Such a ballot serves as a vote of confidence in the ability of the favored man to win and also helps to indicate to all subscribers the true strength of each nominee. Readers should mail their ballots today.

ACCEPTS DEATH BLAME TO SHIELD PAL

Methuen, Sept. 17—In a dramatic last-minute confession just 12 hours before his friend and employe was to be arraigned for manslaughter, James A. Sayers, Jr., 25 of Salem Depot, N. H., confessed early today that he fired the shotgun blast which killed Leo Lemay last Tuesday, police announced.

Sayers son of a prominent Salem Depot and Lawrence former theater manager and former athlete at Woodbury High School at Salem, took all responsibility for the killing, officers said.

He was held for district court on a manslaughter charge, instead of George Rispoli, his employe when police said had acknowledged shooting Lemay early Tuesday.

Loyalty led Rispoli to shield him by admitting the shooting two days earlier in the police investigation, Sayers was quoted.

When he could keep silent no longer, impelled by his conscience, Sayers called his father and Selectman William Barnes of Salem Depot.

His father called District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg in Lawrence, telling of his own son's confession and Cregg sent State Detective Richard A. Griffin and Chief Cyril Feagil of Methuen police to the New Hampshire town for a midnight conference.

There Sayers related to the police officials, including Chief Fred Chrysler of Salem Depot, how he and Rispoli pursued Lemay and two companions in a wild five-mile early morning chase and shot him down in front of the Nesmo Memorial Library on Broadway in Methuen.

His confession came shortly after Lemay, 32 a former Lawrence bartender, had been buried in funeral services from his home on Cross street in Lawrence.

The two companions, allegedly with Lemay, Charles M. Waterman, 39 Lawrence bond salesman, of Simpson street, Andover, and George A. Tait, 30, of Nesmith street, Lawrence, were both arraigned in district court today on fugitive from justice warrants for New Hampshire authorities.

2 MEN ARRAIGNED

According to Sayers' statement, in which he says every detail of that originally told by Rispoli, Lemay and two companions attempted a holdup early Tuesday threatening him with a pistol.

One of the men accused him of "stealing a hot machine," Sayers said.

After they had left, Sayers said he went to nearby Revere's drug store, warned the proprietor against holdup men, saying there had been an attempted robbery at his lunch cart, and then borrowed a 16-gauge automatic shotgun.

Rispoli and three other men in the lunch cart at the time, got into his car, Sayers said.

When they finally overtook the speeding automobile, driven by Lemay, he crowded the machine over to the side of the road.

In the haste to get out, Sayers said he fell into the street, and the shotgun fell to the street beside him.

From a kneeling position he fired a blast.

He intended to shoot over the heads of the men in the other car, Sayers said.

All four men pleaded not guilty to charges against them when arraigned in district court here today.

Cambridge Father Sees Son, 8, Killed

Run over by a milk truck at York and Hammond streets Cambridge before the eyes of his father, Edward Johnson, 2 Plymouth street, Cambridge was instantly killed today.

The boy's father was on the verge of a breakdown at the Cambridge station as the driver of the truck whose name was he was withheld by police.

O'HARA HELD FOR JURY

ried the motion and stated there was evidence before the court of a stenographic record of a race meeting on Saturday, September 4, in which O'Hara and he was the sole owner of the Providence Star-Tribune.

The court pointed out that this fact and that "statements in the charges were quoted statements," were sufficient to proceed with the case.

O'Hara, who last Friday was arraigned shortly after midnight and pleaded not guilty to the charge, sat within the bar enclosure next to his counsel, Laurence J. and Edward T. Hogan.

$5000 BAIL STANDS

At the time of his arrest O'Hara was held in $5000 by Mayor Thomas F. McCoy of Pawtucket and this original bail was also sufficient in today's case.

When Judge Leighton called court to order, the room was jammed. A large crowd was outside.

Mrs. Cle M. O'Hara, wife of the racing tycoon, sat in a front row, escorted by Mayor McCoy.

Handling the case for the prosecution were Joseph T. McKenna, West Warwick town solicitor, and Former Assistant District Attorney Michael De Cicantos, attorney for the Rhode Island Public Utilities Commission and a close friend of Governor Quinn, whom he represented.

Chief of Police Louis Pelletier of West Warwick preferred the charges. The "extra edition" of the Star-Tribune was entered as an exhibit following the testimony by Deputy Chief William Mailloux that he bought a copy of the paper September 9.

HEADLINE READ

Other police witnesses testified they had purchased the paper. The headline "Governor Quinn will land in Butlers, O'Hara says," was read from the paper.

The various witnesses, including Deputy Chief Mailloux, said they took "Butlers" to mean an insane asylum.

Patrolman Henry F. Miller, Jr., of West Warwick, testified he bought eight copies of the paper and that he took the headline to infer the governor was "going crazy."

Several West Warwick storekeepers testified they sold copies of the paper to police and other people.

Miss Agnes Gilson, court stenographer who took testimony September 3 when O'Hara was before the racing division on charges he intimidated State Steward James H. Dooley, read from her original notes.

QUERIED ON NOTES

De Cantos asked her to turn to page 5 of her notes.

"Have you a question and answer relative to the owner of the Star-Tribune?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

The question was asked by Colonel Quinn (the governor's uncle who represented the racing board at the hearing).

The witness then read the question put to O'Hara.

"Are you the controlling owner of the Star-Tribune?"

Miss Gilson quoted O'Hara as replying:

"I am the sole owner, yes."

De Cantos then asked the court to turn to page 5 in the extra edition of the Star-Tribune under the heading "Sequence of Events that Speak for Themselves" and the prosecuting attorney pointed out that it stated that O'Hara was the publisher of the paper.

O'HARA COUNSEL SPEAKS

It was at this point that counsel for O'Hara injected themselves into the proceedings for the first time. Up to this time they informed the court that they had "no questions" to ask the witnesses.

Laurence Hogan called the court's attention to page 16 in the paper, as the owner of the page where it was stated that the publisher was the Providence Tribune Company.

Attorney Edward Hogan then said there was no evidence, and the ruling followed.

As O'Hara walked out of the courtroom he was given an ovation by the crowd.

Meanwhile today the fate of Gannett depended on a decision of the state racing division on revocation or suspension of the track license following a three-day hearing, which ended yesterday.

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 17 (AP)—A decision as to whether Gannett meet ends tomorrow, but revocation or suspension of the license may mean that the track will not open for its scheduled fall meeting, October 18 to November 11, Armistice Day.

RECEIVERSHIP PLEA

It was believed that counsel for O'Hara were prepared to take their fight to the courts in the event of an adverse decision by the racing division.

Before the Rhode Island Superior Court, meanwhile was a receivership petition brought by a minority stockholder in the Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., which sought to change the track's management. This would automatically oust O'Hara, it was said. A hearing was set for Wednesday.

It was learned today that new libel actions against O'Hara are scheduled to be filed in United States district court. They will be instituted by William E. Beebe, Jr., Larchmont, N. Y., advertising man, who was mentioned in the "extra edition" of the Star-Tribune.

O'Hara was also held in $5000 on a charge of criminal libel brought by Beebe in the sixth district court, Providence, and a hearing will be held next Thursday before Judge Louis de Pasquale.

Beebe's new charge, it was stated by a usually reliable source, will be taken into the federal court on grounds that he is a resident of another state and is entitled to seek redress for the alleged libel through a United States agency.

Plan Reception for So. Boston Pastor

The Gate of Heaven parishioners of South Boston will hold a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Dennis F. Murphy, at the Hotel Statler, on October 25.

A large committee under the leadership of Michael King and Mrs. J. Frank O'Hare, is working for the success of this event.

There will be bridge, whist, dancing and entertainment.

A group of young men and women are contacting ex-parishioners to make this event a grand reunion.

The Brighter Side

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

'Twas 19 short years agone, that we began a story under date line of Bar le Duc, France, as follows:

"A lousy poet emerged from the Argonne this afternoon."

It seems that this beginning caused quite a heated debate among the press censors in the fourth estate headquarters at Bar le Duc, a city that we remember chiefly because of a hotel in which they had entertained soon after the Battle of the Marne.

Damon Runyon

Mr. Gerald Morgan, at that time a captain in the A. E. F., and one of the head censors, took the matter up with us in a friendly way. He said the boys in the blue pencil room felt that a question of fact was involved.

"The story was about a Mr. Grantland Rice," we said, with gentle dignity. "Mr. Rice emerged from the Argonne this afternoon."

"True. Quite true," agreed Mr. Morgan. "There is no question as to his emerging. No question at all. He has already borrowed a pair of my best socks."

VERSES TO PROVE IT

"Mr. Rice is a poet," we continued. "If you do not believe it, we have a copy of his last volume of poems, and will read from same to you at random."

"No no," said Mr. Morgan hastily. "That is not necessary. We concede the fact that Mr. Rice is a poet. There is no argument on that point, except from a fellow who writes poetry himself, and we have out-voted him."

"Well, then," we said, "what is in dispute?" Mr. Rice emerged from the Argonne. He is a poet. So what? Wherein do some censors impugn the veracity of a correspondent with credentials from Washington, D. C., U. S. A., and a uniform that does not fit?"

"It is the word that preceded 'poet' in your story," said Mr. Morgan, kindly, knowing full well the power of the press. 'If you intend it in the editorial sense, which is to say, as your reaction to Mr. Rice as a poet, it may be all right.'

"But, if you intend it as a reportorial statement of fact, as boys up at the office consider it one to question, without authentication."

RICE SETTLES DEBATE

"Ah, yes," we said. "We see what you mean. Kindly come with us."

So we escorted Mr. Morgan to a nearby mess hall and pointed out to him the person of Mr. Rice, who was busily engaged in the process of removing about three inches of fuzz and miscellaneous substances Mr. Rice was eating with one hand and scratching himself with the other.

"I understand," said Mr. Morgan, "You are quite right. My congratulations upon your reportorial accuracy. Your story shall go just as it is."

We had lunch with Mr. Rice the other evening, and spoke to him of the days when he was a second lieutenant in France, first attached to the army paper, the Stars and Stripes, and later at general Pershing's headquarters. We asked him if he is going to Sweden with his old comrades next week.

Mr. Rice said he rather suspected he will not go. He says that for nearly 20 years he sensed the time when assigned him to Sweden would be the end to his career as a good dining pal, for many miles with his equipment on his back. So, he said, he has decided to stay home and never had been.

Mr. Rice was always getting left out on the battlefield. One terrible, horrible, hideous, dark, darksome night, when the rain was falling fast, Mr. Rice elected to guide some officer from General Pershing himself to a remote and sequestered spot on the battle line quite a part from where they started.

The journey was safe and accomplished the object in general, as Mr. Rice without as much as an aye, yea or no to find his way back, after the officer had been delivered.

In later years, in some bitterness of spirit, Mr. Rice recalled the incident to General Pershing as an example of the inconsiderateness of generals in general, but of course General Pershing did not remember it.

He had probably left the many second lieuts. out on the line, remember individual cases, and most likely he would have been surprised had Mr. Rice, who is ordinarily the normally gentle Mr. Rice, felt sore about the matter after all those years.

A sturdy gentleman, busy in manner and movement came over to us to talk to us about Mr. Rice, but in consideration of his privations of twenty years ago, we brightened perceptibly. In fact, speaking of soldiers, there was the best soldier he was in France.

NO. 1 SOLDIER

"Some day I'm going to write a book about the best soldier we had over there," said Mr. Rice. "I'll make him my No. 1 fellow. That's Mr. Wild Bill Donovan, who commanded the 69th. I'll be he wouldn't have left a poor second lieutenant out in the rain."

It was several years after it occurred that we got around to telling Mr. Rice that in consideration of his privations of twenty years ago, he

Bartolini Wins Language Clash

Counsel, the court and the defendant clashed today in Dedham Superior Court at the trial of Oscar V. Bartolini, Quincy chef and handy man, for the alleged slaying of Mrs. Grayce Asquith, Weymouth "merry widow."

The clash in the crowded court room came when District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing, attempting to force Bartolini to testify in English during cross-examination, was blocked by Defense Attorney George E. Leary.

Dewing's demand that Bartolini testify in English followed a conference between Bartolini and his counsel during which English words could be heard.

"When did you arrive in this country?" Bartolini was asked as the opening question in the cross-examination.

FAILS TO ANSWER

Bartolini failed to answer the question because Leary hopped to his feet with an objection.

"I Admit Your Honor, that the witness is able to answer in English," Dewing then declared.

He has been testifying through an interpreter," reminded Judge George E. Leary.

Dewing: "I realize that, but I submit that he is able to answer my question in English."

Judge Leary: "I think that if he does not understand some questions they should be put to him through an interpreter."

Dewing: "I realize that, your honor, but I feel this witness can answer most any question I put to him in English."

Then Dewing turned to Bartolini: "Do the witness stand accused?"

"Do you understand my question."

No," Bartolini answered blandly, in English.

Thereafter, however, the witness was used as Dewing questioned him serious.

Q—Have you been conferring with your attorney, since you came into court today? A—Yes.

Q—And that attorney is Mr Leary? A—Yes.

Q—And an interpreter was there when you talked to him, was there? A—No.

Q—And were you told not to answer any of my questions in English? A—No.

SPEAKS IN ENGLISH

Q—You talked for how long with your attorney this morning? A—Five minutes.

Q—And that was in English? A—I swear in English but don't speak it.

Q—But you spoke to your lawyer in English, didn't you? A—I don't understand it.

Q—Did you swear at your attorney for five minutes today in English? A—Yes.

Q—And that's all that happened for five minutes; you swore at your attorney in English?

Bartolini, evidently excited, waved his arms and cried.

COULD TALK WITH WIDOW

"I showed him some papers to show my innocence. They were in Italian and I wanted him to get an interpreter to interpret them to Mr. Leary."

Q—You had no difficulty in talking with Grayce Asquith, did you? A—No, she talked half in Spanish and half in Italian.

Under questioning by Attorney Leary, Bartolini declared that on September 28 of last year, two days before the slaying date, he was in the balcony of the Asquith cottage in his bare feet.

The state has introduced footprints alleged to be those of Bartolini and to have been made in a water-thinned blood on the bathroom floor.

Today the defendant was persistently questioned about the prints of his feet found on the floor. District Attorney Dewing and frequently Bartolini became excited.

Q—Where did you take Lyons? A—To the house of Grayce Asquith in Weymouth.

Q—Where did you take him after that? A—To the house of Grayce I took him and I haven't seen him since.

HELD FERRARI

Q—Did you tell Lieutenant Joseph Ferrari of the state police the story you related here to the jury yesterday about what you say occurred at the Asquith cottage on the 18th? A—Yes.

Q—As a matter of fact you never told him that story, did you? A—I told him the same story.

Q—You never told Ferrari that you went into the bathroom in your bare feet on the afternoon of Friday, Sept 18, did you? A—Yes.

Bartolini then declared he had told Ferrari of the surrounding circumstances which he said would explain how he came to be there, and where.

STICKS TO HIS STORY

He stuck to this contention although Ferrari, seated within earshot, was at him and several times impelled to the court and the jury to repeat the story he told Ferrari when he visited the Asquith cottage on the 18th.

Q—Well, as a matter of fact, this story you told to the jury yesterday about what occurred on Friday, the 18th, is something you left in since you learned about the footprints in the bathroom, isn't it? A—This I have said since I was arrested. I have not changed my position.

Q—Can you tell me the name of one person you told that you were in the bathroom on the Friday, the 18th, in your bare feet? A—I don't remember saying it to anyone except Ferrari.

Q—Didn't you say to Mr Ferrari at the Quincy police station that you didn't take any bundles to the Asquith cottage? A—Mr Ferrari must be the biggest liar in America.

Bruno Mussolini Unhurt in Crash

Rome, Sept. 17 (INS)—Bruno Mussolini, son of Italian premier, escaped injury today when a wheel came off the car in which he was traveling to join Premier Mussolini at Pescia, summer home of the Mussolini family, Fascist headquarters learned.

Bruno rearranged a plane and arrived at Naples just before Villasca sailed.

The latter was accompanied by Hal Roach, American comedy producer, now Villasca's partner in the production of Italian films. Roach, Mussolini son in going to Hollywood to study American methods.

Peabody Man Loses $5000 Balm Fight

Salem, Sept. 17—In less than 8 half-hour a civil Superior Court jury today returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Stelle Hull, defendant in a $5000 breach of promise suit brought by Louis Gazda, of Peabody. Gazda alleged Mrs. Hull had proposed marriage to him in 1934, then married another man.

Home, Sweet Home--But Not His Own

Chicago, Sept 17 (AP)—Earl Hibbott, 25, a public school janitor, turned in when he got to 7915 South Shore drive about 4 a. m.

The door looks familiar, just like the one that leads to his own home, in fact. He went in.

In the bedroom he disrobed, put on a fresh pair of pajamas he found in a bureau drawer, and went to bed.

Mr. Hibbott didn't know the two persons asleep in the bed. They didn't know him, nor of his presence until a baby in the nearby bassinet squalled for the first bottle of the day.

William O'Laughlin and his wife hurriedly called police when they discovered their strange bedfellow. Now Hibbott must explain—if he can—to a judge.

3 WITNESSES IN WEBSTER CASE NAMED

Providence, R. I., Sept. 17—The three mystery witnesses in the Webster murder case were named by police today as Jack E. Ennis, the alleged slayer, was held without bail for a district court hearing September 28.

Deputy Superintendent of Police James J. Cusick identified the witnesses as Mrs. Ruth Louise Seymour, 21; Priscilla Mabel Wright, 28 and Manuel Joseph Sylvia, 32, all of River street, Maynard, Mass.

It was a letter from Maynard police said, that led to seizure of Ennis in connection with the slaying of Dr. George W. Webster two months ago.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

In court during August, a plea of not guilty to a charge of first degree murder was entered in behalf of Ennis by his assigned counsel Assistant Attorney General J. Clifden O'Reilly.

His hair disheveled, wearing an old brown suit, Ennis sat silent in the courtroom throughout the brief proceeding. He was later removed to state prison at Howard.

Stubbornly maintaining his innocence after hurriedly getting the 31-year-old Works Progress Administration employee into custody, he was arrested Saturday police now seeking to unravel all "powerful interests" connected with the slaying.

Despite his protestations, authorities said they had evidence which, they claim, will be convincing to the case. Dr. Webster was found fatally shot in front of the fireplace in Ennis' home, early last July 16.

TRAILED MAN

It was Cusick's journal for the Boston Evening American that the girls were brought into the case after detectives had trailed practically every move made by Ennis.

Ennis, according to a witness, was the man employed to whom the girls went to collect for the sugar and tobacco on that date.

Following the filing of the formal murder charges, police said they would have "a few days" for authorities to check on the whereabouts of the arrested man's wife. Although Ennis has been married, police declared some guard records show he has a wife.

"PICKUP GIRL" BEFORE JURY

In observance of Constitution Day, the Middlesex county grand jury of nine today prepared hearing of a murder case involving the slaying of two Newton police officers, until Monday.

Edward Provost, accused one-time bank bandit, indicted for the murders of Patrolman Henry G. Hall and Lieutenant Eugene C. Sullivan.

Frances W. Prada, 17-year-old "pickup girl" now being held as material witness, was the first witnesses heard today. She testified for about 25 minutes and then was excused by Judge Frederick P. Cox.

Other witnesses were Sergeant Jamie A. Sullivan, Lieutenant Inspector William Mackie of Watertown and Sheriff Joseph M. McKiernan of East Cambridge. Assistant District Attorney William McCluskey presented the case.

Goodwin Puts Ban On New Car Signs

Political and commercial signs carried on the hoods of automobiles have been banned in Massachusetts as a menace to the safety of the public by order of Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles.

Goodwin said they especially endangered children inasmuch as they interfered with the vision of the driver of the car.

SCOUTS HUNT MISSING SWAMPSCOTT MAN

Police from Marblehead and Swampscott joined with 100 Boy Scouts today in an intensified search for Frank A. Cooper, 73-year-old retired house painter, missing from his home on Bellevue road, Swampscott, since early Wednesday.

Cooper lives with his sister Rose and his brother Louis. Police and his family believe that he probably started for a walk in the country near his home and collapsed.

The Legg Hill woods section is being thoroughly combed by squads of men. Three troops of scouts and local police spread out in a line at his home and moved forward, scouring the territory.

Cooper troops of scouts and officers were also searching the woods.

Maryland Governor Sent to Hospital

Annapolis, Sept. 17 (AP)—Physicians directed that Governor Harry W. Nice be taken today to a Baltimore hospital for treatment of an ailment which they insisted was "not alarming."

Governor Nice was brought to his home from Atlantic City, where he became ill while attending the conference of governors.

PARALYSIS VICTIM BATTLES FOR POST

Worcester, Sept. 17—A pretty, frail, blonde school teacher of Leicester high school today fought to retain her position as a teacher in that city after being ousted by a 2-to-1 vote of the school committee.

Crippled from an attack of infantile paralysis, the teacher, Miss Marjorie E. Frye, whose students went on a strike in protest against the school committee's action, contends that when she was elected in 1926, she became a teacher on tenure under the statute.

She is now prosecuting mandatory proceedings against the school committee in superior court here, with Attorney W. Arthur Garrity sitting as master.

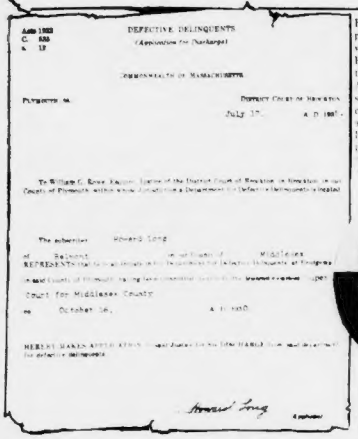
Court Order Forgotten..Dangerous Youth Freed..Boys Die

In our opinion, he is definitely abnormal, but would not be considered insane. He is a psychopathic personality. In view of his deficient intelligence as shown by psychological tests, his very inferior reactions and his inability to profit by experience, it is recommended that he be committed to Bridgewater State Hospital as a defective delinquent.

It would seem that this is the only way to protect society adequately from this individual. A prison sentence will merely result in his being released in a short time and he will continue to practice these sexual abnormalities which render him a menace to the children of whatever section he may be in.

Reproduced above are two paragraphs from a report which Dr. Karl Bowman of Boston Psychopathic Hospital made Nov. 7, 1930, to Dr. A. Warren Stearns, then Massachusetts commissioner of correction. The report characterized Howard Long, now held for confessed murder of two New Hampshire boys, as "definitely abnormal" and a "psychopathic personality."



DEFECTIVE DELINQUENTS
(Application for Discharge)

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

Plymouth, ss. District Court of Brockton

July 17, A. D. 1935.

To William G. Rowe, Esquire, Justice of the District Court of Brockton, in Brockton, in said County of Plymouth, within said District, Department for Defective Delinquents.

The subscriber Howard Long of Belmont in the County of Middlesex REPRESENTS that he is a person who has been committed to the Treatment of Defective Delinquents, in said County of Plymouth, by the [illegible] Court for Middlesex County on October 16, A. D. 1930.

MERELY MAKES LITTLE ATTEMPT ... [illegible] for defective delinquents

Howard Long

This is a photographic facsimile of Howard Long's formal application for discharge from Bridgewater state farm, to which he had been committed as a defective delinquent, with Assistant District Attorney Frederick A. Crafts' recommendation that he subsequently be sentenced to state prison. Long's discharge plea was dated July 17, 1935. He was paroled soon after and was permitted to go to Alton, N. H., to operate a gasoline station. His freedom enabled him to murder two boys.

This is Armand Nadeau, 12-year-old Dover, N. H., boy, who died resisting attempted attacks by Howard Long of Alton Bay, N. H., the month after Long's final discharge from Bridgewater (Mass.) state farm, in Oct., 1936. Young Nadeau was slain in November of that year.

This is Howard Long, formerly of Belmont, more recently of Alton Bay, N. H. He's the man whom Massachusetts authorities knew definitely to be incurably abnormal and a menace to children, yet whom they released to become the alleged brutal slayer of two New Hampshire boys, who died resisting his sex-crazed attacks. Dr. Bowman, a distinguished alienist, plainly warned state authorities that Long, if released, "will continue to practice sexual abnormalities."

Re: Howard Long, M.D.D. 428

Dear Judge Rowe:

The case of the above-named parolee comes up for final discharge consideration on Oct. 5, 1936 and I have just received the following report from his agent:

"He has reported regularly to this office and apparently has been getting along very well. He opened up a gas station and store with a small line of goods. He was visited by an agent of this Department on Aug. 3rd, 1936 and the agent found that Long states he is making a fair living."

In view of this satisfactory record, I would recommend that he be discharged from the defective delinquent commitment.

Yours very truly,
James E. Warren
JAMES E. WARREN

It was on Sept. 30, 1936, that James E. Warren, superintendent of the Bridgewater state farm, wrote Judge William G. Rowe of Brockton district court the letter reproduced above, recommending that Howard Long, at that time of Alton Bay, N. H., be given full release from the Bridgewater institution where he had been committed.

STONE AND STONE
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
27 STATE STREET BOSTON

October 2, 1936

Charles F. King, Esquire
Clerk of District Court
Brockton, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. King:

I shall represent Howard Long in the hearing upon his discharge from the State Farm to be held on Saturday, October 5, at 9:00 o'clock A.M. I am coming from Boston by train and note that the train does not arrive in Brockton until 9:08. I assume that the case will not be reached before that time.

If it is, I assume that the Judge will be willing to hold it for a few minutes until I can get to the Court House.

Very truly yours,
Arthur P. Stone

Reproduced here is a letter from Judge Arthur P. Stone of East Cambridge district court, announcing that he would, as a private attorney, represent Howard Long, Oct. 5, 1935, in Brockton district court, where Long was seeking discharge from Bridgewater state farm. Long was paroled that year, discharged a year later. Judge Stone, who said he was acting for Long as trustee of a fund left the prisoner by his mother, later bought a gas station for him in Alton, N. H.

How Slayer Was Freed to New Crimes

When Howard Long, alleged New Hampshire sex slayer, was committed to Bridgewater state farm in 1930, Massachusetts authorities knew he was "dangerous" to society and took unusual precautions to insure his permanent incarceration.

Discovery of a [illegible] document in Middlesex Superior Court today revealed that Judge James H. Sisk had directed the [illegible] be sentenced to a substantial term in state's prison following his release from the state farm.

But no one recalled the judge's order when the 21-year-old admitted [illegible] defense was turned over to [illegible] probationary agreement—a [illegible] being death to two small boys within the space of 10 months according to New Hampshire police.

Had the order been obeyed, it was admitted [illegible] Mayo Sawtelle and Assistant District Attorney Crafts, who pleaded that the prisoner be sentenced on the sex charge.

TEXT OF MOTION

The motion by Crafts, which has appeared in the court files since that day was as follows:

"The defendant has a long previous record of similar offenses, from which he has been able to escape by reason of indulgent parents and influence.

"It is the consensus of opinion of both his own counsel and the district attorney's office that it is dangerous for this man to be at large in the community and in order to insure against any possible release and the consequent turning loose of this man upon society, it is recommended that in the event of the release of the defendant from the commitment which he is now serving as a defective delinquent, that this case be taken from the files, restored to the list and the defendant given a substantial sentence in the Massachusetts state prison."

Acting to locate the defect in the paper, a search by court officials showed nothing on record whether the order had been transmitted to state farm officials.

Crafts was strongly associated with the order, declared.

"It was not up to the district attorney to notify Bridgewater. In cases of the same kind in the past, the judge has notified institution officials or has instructed a clerk to do so."

DUTY DENIED

But in the court clerk's office, it was denied that such duty devolved on the clerical staff.

It was also learned that no records were available, showing that Bridgewater authorities had notified the police or district attorney's office at the same time Long was released.

Meanwhile, Judge Arthur P. Stone, of East Cambridge district court, who acted as petitioner for Long's release in 1935, said he had no knowledge of the detaining motion by Crafts.

Long was released from Bridgewater in October, 1935, on the order of Judge William G. Rowe of Brockton district court.

HOUSE TO GET CALL FOR QUIZ ON BLACK

Washington, Sept. 17 (INS)—Rep. Matthew Merritt, Democratic Representative at large from New York, stated today that, if Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black fails either to successfully refute charges regarding his reputed membership in the Ku Klux Klan, or to resign, he will introduce a resolution when the House convenes for a full investigation of the matter.

Merritt added that there is ample precedent for such an inquiry as the House often has ordered investigations to determine whether federal judges should be impeached.

"EVIDENCE SHOCKING"

"The evidence of Justice Black's connection with the Ku Klux Klan is shocking, and he either should clear up the situation or resign from the nation's highest court," said Merritt.

"If he does not comply with these conditions, a congressional investigation should be made."

The Supreme Court itself attacked by President Roosevelt for months, may save his face in the crisis arising out of the appointment of Black.

Reports in high official circles said the remaining eight active members of the high court are loath to see the appointment invalid on legal grounds.

A resignation against Black already has been filed with the clerk of the Supreme Court here by Representative Lambertson, addressed to the attorney-general and one time federal judge in the Virgin Islands.

SAYS BLACK INELIGIBLE

Lambertson's letter charges that Black is ineligible because of a federal statute that makes any member of congress ineligible to fill an office of he was a member of congress during the increased emoluments of the office.

One of the first acts of the court in its November session will be to decide whether to take jurisdiction in the challenge of Black's appointment to the bench.

There also remains the President and administration inside generals who are known to be worried regarding the effect left in what many consider the most critical hot spot of the President's political career.

WOULD CHANGE VOTE

Meanwhile, not a few Democratic members of the Senate who voted for or stood for the ratification of Black's appointment have come out with public statements that they would not have approved him if they had known of his Klan affiliations.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (R.), though a Republican, voted for Black's confirmation, said:

"If I had known he was a member of the Klan, I certainly would not have voted for his confirmation."

Senator Carter Glass (Virginia Democrat), who voted against Black's confirmation, said:

"My vote in the Senate against the confirmation of Senator Black for the Supreme Court reflected my own opinion then and now of the utter unfitness of the nomination, regardless of the Ku Klux Klan charge."

Other Democratic senators who have expressed themselves to the same general effect are Gillette of Iowa, Van Nuys of Indiana, Brown of Michigan, Hughes of New Jersey, Meadow of California, Clark of Missouri, Wagner of New York, Herring of Iowa and Radcliffe of Maryland.

Underwood Fate Cited by Klan To Warn Black

Special to Boston Evening American

New York, Sept. 17—More of the long-hidden details of what happened in Birmingham, Ala., on September 2, 1926, when the present Associate Justice Hugo L. Black of the United States Supreme Court got his "gold passport" which entitled him to Ku Klux Klan membership for life in the presence of thousands of wildly enthusiastic klansmen, were published in various newspapers throughout the country today.

These revelations, which may prove far-reaching in their results, quote from stenographic minutes of the huge Klan meeting held that day and show Imperial Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans boasting openly of how the Klan had reached into various states, especially Ohio and Oklahoma.

According to Evans, the Snodeed order did so without bothering to go openly into politics. The Klan act confined the political fights and directed the political fights their own way, he said.

"RUM ROMANISM"

Then he dragged "Rum and Romanism" into his speech, it is stated in the minutes published in today's New York Times and various other newspapers in the country, having rights to the copyrighted articles being distributed by the American Newspaper Alliance and the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Evans used this phrase according to the minutes, while the present Justice Black, who had just endorsed the principles of what he called "the great Klan organization," was still holding membership because of his "regulation gold passport."

Those minutes put a new light on some of the things that have happened in American politics in recent years and are actually sensational when read against the background of the 1928 whirlwind passed over Justice Black's political observers pointed out.

When Evans boastfully went into a vicious attack on the late U. S. Senator Oscar Underwood, for many years Senator from Alabama.

SPOILED HIS PLAN

He told how to his determination to beat Al Smith, the candidate of "Rum and Romanism" he had planned to let Senator William G. McAdoo of California and Smith destroy each other in the 1924 Democratic convention and then bring out Senator Oscar Underwood as the Democratic candidate for President of the United States.

Just as he was about to do this he said, the late Senator Underwood went into a severe public denunciation of the Klan. Dodge's speech was a great sensation at the time.

Evans, according to the minutes, told his listeners how he had then begun plotting for the destruction of Underwood and described him as being unworthy of an Alabama mother.

He told how Underwood would have been the Democratic candidate that year instead of John W. Davis, except for his attack on the Klan. The idea apparently was to let Black and Governor Bibb Graves who were present at the meeting, smoke while hanging to Klansmen, no matter how big they are if they ever turn against the Klan.

BEATEN BY KLAN

The irony of the Underwood, of course, is that he was actually beaten by the Klan when he came up for the succeeding again Hugo L. Black who listened that day in 1926 to what had begun to happen Underwood in 1924 was the weapon used by the Klan to defeat Underwood, now dead.

When Evans boastfully went on to explain his political strategy. He declared that as soon as the Klan should get control of either of both political machines in certain states it pretended to drop out of politics completely, but would work secretly through the party it controlled.

3 LEGISLATORS ASSAIL NAMING OF BLACK

Two Massachusetts state senators and a representative today assailed the appointment of Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama to the United States Supreme Court, all of them criticizing President Roosevelt at the same time.

While Senator William H. M. Sweeney, chairman of the state committee of legal affairs said:

"These charges involve Senator Black's integrity as a statesman.

"If they are shown to be true then we shall have a man in the nation's highest tribunal notoriously opposed to certain racial and religious elements in American civilization.

RAPS APPOINTMENT

"Senator Black should not have been appointed to the United States Supreme Court and now, in these circumstances, he should never be permitted to take his place on that bench."

Representative George J. Leary, also a member of the committee, with State Senator David M. Brackman, of the same committee joined in a double-barrelled attack. He said:

"The appointment of Senator Hugo Black as a justice of the United States Supreme Court is a reflection on all citizens who revere right-minded thinking and are shocked by any influence contrary to the principles of free democracy.

"To me, it appears the President could not have known all the facts, or the appointment would not have been made.

"It appears to me that the swearing in of Senator Black was done in a clandestine manner."

BLAMES ROOSEVELT

Senator Brackman said he agreed with Senators Walsh and Bridges that the blame rests squarely on the shoulders of President Roosevelt. He said:

"Senator Black is a man who sold out God-given rights for a mess of pottage, the dubious value of the support of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Senator Black should tender his resignation immediately, if the charges are authentic. He was never a suitable candidate for the appointment to the highest tribunal in the land, he never displayed any judicial temperament and his silence, now is obviously an acknowledgement of the charges."

Full Bench O. K.'s Irwin Rejection

The full bench of the supreme court today confirmed the action of Justice Edward P. Pierce in denying a petition for a writ of error to James J. Irwin of Everett against Judge Thomas H. Connolly of Brighton court.

Judge Connolly had refused to order an election inquest on coroner Irwin's charges brought by Irwin against Governor Curley, Daniel H. Coakley of Brighton and Hon. Representative Daniel H. Coakley, Jr.

Timilty Gets Papal Medal For Example To Children

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty was honored today by Pope Pius XI for his "outstanding example to the children of America," when he received a silver embossed medal from the Pontifical Academy of Sciences in Rome.

The medal, the size of a silver dollar, is inscribed in Latin. It bears a likeness of Pope Pius XI on one side and three noted Italian scientists on the reverse side. In the lower left hand corner is a medal from the Pontifical Academy of Sciences. Also in Latin it bears the name of Pope Pius and the date of the issuance.

Commissioner Timilty, a devout Catholic, was informed by Right Monsignor Tardini, a visiting prelate that the Pope was to honor him for his work in connection with the medal stated in part:

"This medal is conferred upon you by Pope Pius XI for your outstanding example to the children of America."

Assert Klan Helped Black Free Killer Of Priest

Special to the Boston Evening American

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 17—The story of how, in 1921, the Ku Klux Klan is alleged to have raised funds to pay the present Associate Justice Hugo L. Black's fee to defend and obtain the acquittal of a man who murdered a Catholic priest was revealed here today along with the story of the kind of defense Black made in that case.

Rev. Edward R. Stephenson, with a Ku Klux Klan reputation, shot and killed Father James E. Coyle, who was sitting on his porch. There was a terrific flare-up and the fate of the Klan defense fund was instantly in the open.

It went to trial before Circuit Court Judge William E. Fort, after a second degree murder indictment. It developed in later years that Judge Fort became an official of the Ku Klux Klan and a law partner of Justice Black.

On the stand, Stephenson said that a local character named Pedro Guisman had taken Rev. Stephenson's daughter Ruth as his prospective bride and that Father Coyle had performed a marriage ceremony uniting them just a few hours before the killing.

After a meeting between Stephenson and Father Coyle, the former whipped out his revolver and fired three shots.

All of this was admitted by the defense and then Black began to get in the smallest move, considering the locality.

He began to lay the groundwork for conviction by showing that Stephenson had killed because he thought Guisman was a Negro and that was why he, Stephenson, had gone after the priest for marrying the young couple.

Coast Heat Record

Los Angeles, Sept. 17 (INS)—One death had been reported in Los Angeles today as the mercury soared to the second highest mark of the current hot spell—92 degrees. The heat victim was Garrett Moore, a cook.

'DEATH-BED BRIDE' INHERITS $400,000

Bride for a day, Helen McNulty, Boston stenographer, today inherited a $400,000 fortune. Her wealthy lumberman husband succumbed to an incurable illness in a Newport, R. I., hospital a few hours after their death-bed marriage.

The 36-year-old office worker, who lives in Melrose, had rushed to the hospital where her dying beau, George H. Hammett, had been confined for the past month.

Hammett, 40, was the son of the late Harry G. Hammett, hardware and lumber merchant, who died last May, leaving to his only child $320,000 in personal property and $75,000 in real property.

MARRIAGE BALKED

Sweethearts since they met last spring, according to friends, the couple had been balked in their marriage plans by the dread disease that felled the groom-to-be.

Wednesday physicians informed Hammett that he could not possibly survive his malady.

His first thought, they said, was for the future welfare of his beloved. With the doctors' consent, he summoned her to his bedside and impatiently urged her to marry him before death arrived.

Stunned and upset by the knowledge of his condition, Miss McNulty at first was unwilling to go through with the ceremony because she felt it would be unfair to Hammett, friends said.

BRIDE-GROOM DIES

Hammett's pleadings finally won her over and they were wed by the Rev. Ernest Wegner of the United Congregational Church, Newport.

A few close friends and white-clothed members of the hospital staff were the only witnesses to the ceremony.

Hours later, Hammett died.

His wife, it was said, will receive all of the estate he left, with the exception of a small share which must go to a son by a former marriage, according to Rhode Island law.

Today the bereaved bride was in seclusion at Newport. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McNulty, of Boston, she has been a regular attendee at the Boston Opital since Hammett was stricken.

Mrs. Hammett, it was disclosed, had been overcome by the fateful chain of events that had brought her romance within the year—and death and fortune within the short space of 24 hours.

BUCKLEY BLASTS OLD COLONY'S CUT IN TRAINS

State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley lashed out at owners of the Old Colony division of the New Haven railroad when he appeared today before the State Public Utilities Commission to protest against curtailment of train service.

Today's hearing was given over to protests of residents of Blackstone, Dedham, Franklin, Needham, Plymouth and Provincetown against the railroad's plan to curtail certain those towns beginning September 26 as an economy measure.

The sins of the commission have finally caught up with the owners of the Old Colony railroad," Buckley said. "The have never made the slightest effort to control commerce. They should make an effort to build up patronage instead of taking off trains and throwing men out of work."

The railroad company plans to take off 12 trains serving communities on the Old Colony division. W. W. Meyer, counsel for the company told the utilities commission that the curtailment was being made as an economy measure in order to help investors get a return on their investments.

Another public hearing will be held by the commission next Wednesday to give residents of Fall River, New Bedford and Taunton an opportunity to protest against the proposed curtailment.

Find Family 'Row' Helpful to Child

Denver (AP)—Mild family "rows" are a beneficial factor in rearing children, in the opinion of Sidonia M. Greenberg, child specialist.

"Healthy family argument," she said, "gives children an insight into the problems of life."

Unclad Girl Dies in Hotel Plunge

Los Angeles, Sept. 17 (INS)—An attractive 23-year-old nurse, nude, plunged to death from a fifth floor hotel window here early today under what police said were "mysterious circumstances."

The young woman was Ethel I. Ostling, and police said they were not certain whether she had been murdered or committed suicide.

G. Milton, who was across the street from the hotel at the time, told detectives he lived in the room, and had permitted no acquaintance to take the girl there. He said he did not know Miss Ostling.

Girl Found Dead; Fear Foul Play

New York, Sept. 17 (INS)—Pending an autopsy, foul play was suspected today in the death of an unidentified attractive girl whose body was found last night in the rear courtyard of a luxurious apartment building in the Bronx.

Japanese Drive Risks Russ War

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

Shanghai, Sept. 17—The armies of China and Japan swayed back and forth in deadly embrace on the huge battleground of North China today, while at both extremities—Mukden and Shanghai—new contingents of Japanese troops arrived to reinforce imperials now approaching a million.

Incessant rain in the Shanghai area bogged down the 25-mile local front, preventing movement of the motorized Japanese divisions, but failing to check their mortars from pouring tons of explosives into long-suffering Chapei in an effort to blow the Chinese away from contact with the International Settlement.

Again all Shanghai vibrated throughout the night to detonations of high explosive shells.

FOUR OBJECTIVES

Meanwhile, the grand strategy of the Japanese campaign unfolded in a clearer light. There are four main objectives.

First, to isolate China from all surplus items abroad.

Second, to prepare defense against a possible Russian attack.

Third, to drive southward from the four-city baseline—Tientsin, Peiping, Kalgan and Taiyuan.

Fourth, to drive northward from Shanghai to Nanking.

Were all these aims to be achieved, the Japanese could then place the puppet Emperor Pu Yi on the old throne of Peiping and rule the three most conquered North and Central China.

To accomplish China's isolation, the Japanese navy is blockading the coast with even treaty ports already closed off from all shipping by mines in the area.

WORLD WAR RISKED

The Japanese army has occupied all land routes from Russia save the "corridor" from Kalgan through Suiyuan. To invade Russia, however, Japan would have to mobilize more troops than the 270,000 already in Manchukuo in an attempt to reach parity with the 1,000,000 men constituting the Russian Far Eastern army.

At the same time, a Japanese push southward into Inner Mongolia would menace Outer Mongolia. Russia, by this course, takes may be considered a strategical position to increase the danger of war with the Soviet by way of Siberia. Such a declaration would come of the Japanese push into Outer Mongolia.

The Soviet stockpiled in protected areas in Outer Mongolia, while reports the Chinese have continued to safeguard facing a heavy rain of shells for maintaining the high morale and continuing against the invaders.

STRENGTH DOUBLED

The forces on the drive northward from Shanghai—was not accurately ascertained. It is believed here that the Japanese have increased the Shanghai incident, contrary to Japanese announcements, to double that in North China.

Estimates of invalid military has not yet been determined.

Japanese experts give the Japanese army 175,000 in Manchukuo, 180,000 in North China and 100,000 in Shanghai, equal to 450,000, or nearly double the peacetime Japanese strength.

The same sources estimate Chinese effectives fully armed in Shanghai and North China at 750,000.

Basis for the belief that Japan is vulnerable to a Soviet attack is growing and is not lost on the Japanese or Russians, much less the Chinese, who openly declare their conviction that Russia is bound to intervene.

"But that means world war," I remarked.

"So what?" replied a Chinese spokesman. "It's inevitable anyway."

Chinese Protest U. S. Arms Ban

Nanking, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Chinese government was disclosed today to have protested officially in the United States against the government's ban on arms to the Orient, charging it was unfair treatment of China.

Dr. C. T. Wang, the Chinese ambassador to Washington, was said to have conveyed the bitter resentment of the Chinese government to the United States State Department.

The Washington decision, forbidding government-controlled merchantmen from transporting war supplies to either Japan or China, was characterized by the foreign office spokesman as "regrettable and unjustified."

"It may be neutrality," he added, "but a complete embargo would at least be fairer, for it would halt all shipments to either China or Japan."

Elder Statesman Of Japan Stricken

Okitsu, Japan, Sept. 17 (AP)—Prince Kimmochi Saionji, 89, last of Japan's elder statesmen, dying a dominant factor in the government of the empire, was stricken on account today on a train returning from Gotemba.

Rushed to his home here, a specialist was immediately called from Tokyo. The nature of his illness has not yet been determined.

INNOCENT VICTIM OF UNDECLARED WAR

Here is a tiny orphaned baby, innocent victim of the Sino-Japanese undeclared war, sitting helplessly amid the ruins of the South Station in Shanghai, after bombing by Japanese air forces. Hundreds of would-be refugees from the war's horror were killed when their trains, still in the station, were smashed by the exploding shells.

BRITAIN ENDS PATROL IN NEW SLAP AT DUCE

London, Sept. 17 (AP)—Britain today ended the unsuccessful non-intervention patrol of Spain to make available her full quota of warships for the "more important task" of driving pirate attackers from the Mediterranean.

France joined in the decision. The foreign office announced the end of the patrol, formed by the 27-nation non-intervention committee in an effort to keep arms and men from either side in the Spanish civil war.

The decision to end the patrol, carried on by French and British warships after Germany and Italy withdrew in anger because of attacks against their ships last June, was considered a new rebuff to Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Italy and Germany already are openly resentful of the non-power conference drafted at Nyon, giving Britain and France major control of the war on pirates in the Mediterranean.

The decision was called a major change in policy on the part of Britain, marking perhaps a stiffer attitude against piracy and disorder in the Mediterranean and came as the Nyon powers met in Geneva to discuss warfare against surface ships and aircraft, as well as submarines.

Submarines are the major suspective in the new anti-pirate patrol, to last as long as Nyon.

As the powers met at Geneva, still deadlocked with Italy over her demands for parity in the new anti-piracy patrol, Britain and France showed any sign of yielding.

The Nyon agreement provided that Italy had the last word and must approve or reject the plan before the Nyon signatories, and the latter argued that the text appeared to preclude any veto by Italy.

Italy has protested that her assignment under the Nyon accord to patrol the Tyrrhenian sea area is too small a role considering her interests in the Mediterranean and the shipping in and out of her ports. She demanded a part as large as those given to Britain and France.

Injuries Blamed on Truck Strikers

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 17 (AP)—Ralph Yeager, 30, of North Manchester, Florence Mann, was fatally injured and Mrs. Ruth Mann suffered a broken arm and leg in a storm allegedly caused by a truck strike.

At the hospital it was said he had a brain concussion and that Miss Mann's condition was serious. Her injuries were described as "fairly good."

Ex-Kaiser Nearly Got To Berlin

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1937)

Berlin, Sept. 17—A sensational plan of former Kaiser Wilhelm to rush incognito to Berlin has been abandoned with news his wife, Princess Hermine, has made a successful recovery from a critical operation, it was learned today.

Fearful she might not recover, the fault former emperor had made all arrangements for a flight by fast train from Doorn, Holland, to reach her bedside.

Word was flashed through to Doorn, however, that the Princess had passed the danger point, and barring complications is now certain to recover.

Princess Hermine, second wife of the former German ruler, underwent the operation in a private sanitarium here August 28.

For days her life hung in the balance. Wilhelm kept in constant touch with her physicians by telephone, and every day messengers arrived with huge baskets of flowers for the patient.

Wilhelm hourly awaited summons from the doctors to hasten to her bedside. Arrangements had been made on both sides of the border for a speedy and secret crossing.

Only when the danger had been determined, had agreed to allow Wilhelm to enter Germany without the usual formalities. He had agreed to return to Doorn immediately after the visit.

Soviet Boosts Pay In Cotton Mills to Spur Output

Moscow, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Soviet government began a campaign for a bigger and better textile output by giving workers wage increases and providing for better housing. Declaring prices and wages in the textile industry were unsatisfactory, it was announced an additional 500,000,000 rubles would be established in order to attract thousands of persons into the industry. Plans for new factories and expansion of existing ones also were announced as part of a program to increase the supply of cotton goods to adequate for the country's needs, but the mills fail to meet new materials, to their almost capacity.

Agricultural experts estimated that the Soviet Union would get more than 5,000,000 bales of cotton during 1937.

SOVIETS SUED FOR 10 MILLION

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—A claim that the Russian Republic of Soviets owes $10,000,000 to the Russian Republic of Kerensky was made part here today in motion under consideration by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Dore.

The action was instituted by the Russian Republic of Kerensky to sue for Russian claims.

The claim states that $10,000,000 has been withdrawn from the Russian account that under the 1933 Litvinoff agreement Russia assigned all the amounts in this account to the United States government and, therefore, has no right to sue for it.

Further charged by the bank that Russia violated the agreement under which the money was deposited in this country in that it "has failed to refrain from propaganda, as appears from the records of the administrative department of the United States."

The counter-claim for $10,000,000 is based on accounts of deposits and property of the bank in Russia and states to the receipt for the purchase of railway cars and other materials for use there.

This tribute tendered by New England leaders to the Constitution upon its Sesquicentennial—

PRESERVE THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.

1787 1937

—"That Government of the People, By the People, For the People Shall Not Perish From the Earth."

(The Immortal Words of Abraham Lincoln)

NINETEEN THIRTY-SEVEN is a great [illegible] year in American History.

It is the 150th Anniversary of the United States Constitution, the CORNERSTONE, the KEYSTONE [illegible] CAPSTONE of the liberties of all Americans.

It is the occasion on which we look back upon a century and a half of PERSONAL LIBERTY such as no other people in the world has ever had.

It is a time that we [illegible] PROSPERITY which has made us the envy [illegible].

It is the period for taking just pride in our expanding NATIONAL GREATNESS that has made us respected and sometimes feared.

Rightly and with cause the American people rejoice. But [illegible]

[illegible] KNOW [illegible] He should KNOW [illegible] Constitution [illegible]

The Constitution should be his POLITICAL BIBLE. Its English is as simple as the Bible and its vast [illegible] of democracy, freedom and individualism, condensed in the fewest words possible is a PRODUCT OF THE BIBLE.

Like the Bible the Constitution is a SPIRITUAL DOCUMENT. It has to do with SPIRITUAL values.

[illegible] REALIZE [illegible]

[illegible]

They safeguard him against tyrannous practices of any kind—imprisonment without reason, excessive bail, cruel and unusual punishment and search and seizure without a warrant.

These indeed are SPIRITUAL values.

Fifty years ago, on the occasion of the Constitution's centennial Grover Cleveland, then President, said:

"When we look down one hundred years and see the origin of our Constitution, when we contemplate all its trials and its triumphs, when we realize how completely the principles upon which it is based have met every national need, how devotedly should we say with Franklin: 'God governs in the affairs of men.'"

Today, wars and depressions behind us, we too can look back over the years and, like Cleveland, praise the Constitution which preserves us as it did him and his contemporaries.

And reverently, as loving children honoring a loved mother, we can and should resolve in Daniel Webster's reverent words:

"Let us stand by the Constitution as it is, and by our country as it is, united and entire; let it be a truth engraven on our hearts; let it be borne on the flag under which we rally in every exigency, that we have ONE country, ONE Constitution ONE destiny."

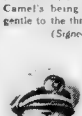
"IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?"—A QUESTION ASKED BY MANY PEOPLE

ANSWER: Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

"I have taken my share of big fish—marlin and tuna. I know what a rod-and-reel contest with those heavy fighters does to a man's steering. When I've gotten a big fellow safely landed it's next move is to light a Camel. A Camel very quickly gives me an invigorating lift."
(Signed) REX BEACH
famous novelist and sportsman

"Camels rich, delicate flavor appeals to a woman's taste. I smoke nothing else. So many of the gals in our crowd feel the way I do about Camel's being extra-gentle to the throat."
(Signed) JOSELYN LIBBY,
private secretary



"I can tell Camels are made from mighty fine tobaccos. There's a night more goodness in 'em for one thing—real natural flavor that doesn't tire my taste. I wouldn't be caught on the high seas without my supply of Camels. No sir! Camels come in handy, too, at the table. I like my Camels at mealtimes. They help my digestion keep on an even keel."
(Signed) GEORGE BUCKINGHAM, ship's engineer

Think of what this means! The greatest pleasure for the greatest number of smokers ever given by any cigarette

AND this didn't happen by chance. Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America—and in the world—because they give a new delight to smoking—because people can and do appreciate costlier tobaccos. Smokers have learned that they can trust those finer tobaccos in Camels to give them more of what they want in smoking. And that makes Camels policy of spending millions of dollars more for costlier tobaccos "good business."

Millions of men and women have given Camels the severest test—smoked them steadily—and have found that Camels open the door for full, natural smoke enjoyment. If you are not a Camel smoker, try them. And see if you, too, don't find vastly more pleasure in Camel's costlier tobaccos.

"I love the taste of a Camel. They're so mild. Even after steady smoking I notice no 'cigaretty' after-taste."
(Signed)
MRS. ANTHONY J. DREXEL 3D

"In this racing game, it's vital to know that you can rely on the mildness of your cigarette. That makes it Camels for me. Man, Camels have a mildness that's unbeatable, to my way of thinking!"
(Signed) LOU MEYER,
Indianapolis Auto Race winner

"Eye digestion's okay—smoke Camels," as a rule with me. I think it is grand how Camels help me enjoy my food no matter how tense I may be. And Camels do not irritate my throat." (Signed)

COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending of leaf with leaf brings out the full flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos.

REDS HELD MENACE TO WORLD

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The text for today is from the Apocrypha, the Book of Ecclesiasticus 44:1:

"Let us now praise famous men and our fathers before us."

Or as Rudyard Kipling paraphrased it in his "A School Song":

"Let us now praise famous men'
Men of whom the world says ill—
For they work
And we are well
And
Give Wrong"

"As the Boston Crusade is the most ... [illegible] ... that has proceeded from the womb and ... [illegible] ... Slavery ... the American Colonies ... so far as I am ... [illegible] ... I work ... [illegible] ... at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.

Wendell Phillips' Saying Wise, Concise

... [illegible] ... Faneuil and Wendell Phillips ...

"All that is valuable in the United States Constitution ... [illegible] ... years."

President Woodrow Wilson ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... Grayson ... [illegible] ... Jefferson ... [illegible] ... F. D. Roosevelt ...

"Shame on you at Constitution ... [illegible] ... ceremonies ... precious and dear to them, like the Ark of the Covenant, too sacred to be touched. They ascribe to the men of the preceding age a wisdom more than human and suppose what they did to be beyond amendment. We might as well require a man to wear the coat that fitted him as a boy as to oblige society to remain ever under the regulations of a former time."

Gladstone's View Generally Upheld

That was the horse-and-buggy aphorism of Jefferson's day. Generally American opinion has rejected ... [illegible] ... and ... [illegible] ... Gladstonian ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... man.

The ... [illegible] ... were going ... [illegible] ... what it were possible and ... [illegible] ... reasonably young men. Their ... [illegible] ... through the organization ... [illegible] ... Revolutionary War.

They were ... men of affairs of a generation ... [illegible] ... on some of the wisest and ... [illegible] ... of their and earlier generations.

Their ... [illegible] ... minds with others of ... [illegible] ... the ancient Jews, as well as Locke and Montesquieu, Burke and Beaumarchais, the ... [illegible] ... of their own and preceding generations.

The ... [illegible] ... of that training is best to be seen in ... [illegible] ... itself. Lord Carnarvon speaks of it as a magnificent piece of compromise. "It was a group of leaders who destroyed the power ... [illegible] ... for a time that destroyed government."

Bill of Rights Still Integral, Vital Part

It must never be forgotten that, however ... [illegible] ... Bill of Rights is an integral part of the Constitution and of the whole structure.

... [illegible] ... attempt in Europe ... [illegible] ... to wrest the scripture ... [illegible] ... meaning for his own ends ... [illegible] ... Administration, American public opinion ... Belle and Henry rush into a hasty marriage, but their honeymoon is relentlessly interrupted by her father-in-law, a role played strongly by Donald Crisp. The father succeeds in separating the young people, and in bringing an annulment of their marriage.

Belle is on the point of accepting Henry's offer of reconciliation but a visit from the unselfish ex-valid wife inspires a noble renunciation. Belle gives up her son to his father—and goes away.

Hide Dumbness; It's Diplomacy

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

At a dinner to Paul Mallon this week we sat at a table with the English, German and French consul generals. They all were permanent smiles like endorsers of patent medicines. But we were thankful that not one of them had done the cooking.

It proves that diplomacy is the art of concealing what you don't know from a man who wouldn't understand it if he did.

That doesn't make sense. But neither do those three fellows shaking hands and acting as polite as a fellow who gives you the ether for an operation.

In America they're pals. But in Europe they are opposing tackles. With England playing a passing back and ready to hop on anybody with the ball.

Barbara Brewer Becomes Bride In Beverly Farms Ceremony

By BETTY ALDEN

BECAUSE BARBARA BREWER is one of the most charming brides who ever made her way up the aisle of St. John's Church in Beverly Farms, she will have no trouble in holding the admiration and attention of the guests at her wedding to Charles Russell Lowell Sturgis this afternoon . . . in spite of the fact that both of the principals in the country's newest widely heralded romance are in the wedding party . . .

BARBARA BREWER

Naturally all eyes will seek out the tallest usher, Johnny Roosevelt, as he walks up and down in performance of his duties . . . Then, when the organ starts the wedding march, and the bridal procession begins, heads will turn to pick out Anne Clark among the bridesmaids . . . until the bride, herself, appears, demurely leaning on the arm of her father, Robert E. Brewer . . .

Barbara's gown is a princess model of white satin with a collar of rose point lace and a tulle veil, which accents the blonde beauty which won her the title of 'prettiest girl on the North Shore' in the popularity contest at the Casino last summer . . . She is carrying a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley . . .

Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill and Rev. Bradford Burnham are officiating at the ceremony before [illegible] banked with white lilies and greens . . .

Jane Brewer, sister of the bride, is the maid of honor and Susan Brewer, who is to become the bride of Benjamin L. Hunting[illegible] is one of the bridesmaids . . . The others are [illegible] bride two seasons ago . . . Lois [illegible] Nancy Lucas, Anne Fiske Fearing, [illegible] Anne Clark and Ruth [illegible] . . . They will wear [illegible] with pink taffeta sashes and brown velvet hats [illegible] . . .

[illegible] Anne, who is coming [illegible] from [illegible] to act as flower girl [illegible] and Mr. Hunting's brother, will be [illegible] . . .

[illegible] Mrs. John Roosevelt [illegible] . . .

[illegible] Benjamin Hunting [illegible] William S. Bennett and Alfred S. Dean [illegible] Boston . . . and Carl H. Hoagland of New York, Dr. Albert H. Harris of Arlington, and William N. Wurster of Warrenton, Va. . . . Howard O. Sturgis of Montreal, [illegible] cousin of the groom . . .

The wedding reception is to take place at the Essex County Club in Manchester . . . Mrs. Brewer, the bride's mother, has chosen for the occasion a gown of dark blue lace with a wide trimmed hat to match, and Mrs. Edward Sturgis, mother of the bridegroom, a [illegible] . . .

The bride is a graduate of Wheaton School in [illegible] 1935 and is a member of the Junior League and [illegible] . . . Her parents [illegible] Manchester, [illegible] . . . [illegible] January 1938 . . .

The bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sturgis of Adams street, Milton, and Mary Cabot, [illegible] . . . Harvard [illegible] and attended the Law School of the University of Virginia . . . Tears and Sobs Are Futile When Woman Has Real Problem to Solve

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The first thing for a woman to do when faced with a serious problem is to stop crying herself to sleep at night.

Tears never did anything for a woman except give her an extra pair of eyes and make a permanent wave unnecessary.

And yet here is a girl who seems to be getting worse and worse instead of better, and I have a good advantage over the envelope type. For there is something in human nature—a morning after which I'm afraid most of us are willing to make some sacrifice to avoid.

And I am going to find out about the three months.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

The victim of poison ivy complains of severe burning and itching of the skin.

Any portion of the body may be involved, but as a rule the face and hands are most commonly affected. Small water blisters form which, if scratching and pressure may cause the irritation to spread to adjacent parts of the skin.

If contact has been made with the poisonous plant, it is best to take a warm bath and scrub the body with a strong alkaline soap (green or "tincture" soap powder).

Follow this with an alcohol sponge. If alcohol is not available, gasoline may be used. Of course, keep away from flames and take the necessary precautions because gasoline is extremely explosive.

But if this treatment fails to stop the progress after a few of the pus may be obtained by the use of bacterial or pus-solidifying lotions. These preparations cool and soothe the irritated skin.

Dialogue in a Tap: Apology for Athletic Scholarships

THE UPSTAIRS TAP-ROOM AT THE University Club was deserted except for a corner table where a middle-aged Princeton alumnus was arguing with an ex-Pittsburgh halfback on the advisability of spoiling potential mill-hands and engine oilers by exposing them to college football educations. The Princeton man argued that the athletic scholarship system of taking shaggy schoolboys and teaching them non-essential subjects for the sake of their tackle-crashing talents tended to create a misfit type of white-collar worker.

AUSTEN LAKE

"They are lost in artificial surroundings after graduating," said the Princeton man.

The Pitt man, faintly gray about the temples, sells auto tires in gross lots and he said slowly, "I was young myself not so long ago . . ."

The Princeton man said, "Education is either a privilege or a poison."

"I was born in a downtown brick row," said the Pitt man. "The L ran opposite our second story and the apartments were crowded with families of buck-toothed, freckled and unwashed kids . . ."

The Princeton man stirred [illegible]

"We had our vices," said the Pitt man. "We used to wallop the sides of slot-phones in dark hallways and catch the nickels and dimes as they spouted from the ruptured coin boxes. And the pie-wagons from the wholesale bakeries would make the rounds of the neighborhood delicatessens in early morning and we used to copy patterns of the padlocks and open the wooden curbstone boxes where the drivers left piles of custard, meringue and apricot pastries and, maybe, a gunny sack of sugar rolls and cinnamon buns . . ."

The Princeton man said, "At best culture is never more than a surface gloss"

Fate on a City Dump

[illegible]

The Princeton man said, "There should be an aristocracy of [illegible]"

"Now that I think of it," said the Pitt man, "we delighted in petty thievery and malicious mischief and set our standards by the pool-room yawners and certain much-admired characters known as "Sleepout" and "Fingers," whose ample spending funds came from obscure sources."

The Princeton man said, "The colleges are contributing to a reign of inferiority."

"There was an old city dump near an abandoned cemetery," said the Pitt man, "and a kind of perpetual autumn haze of smouldering paper and decayed matter swept across the woody lots where our set of pioneer pick-locks would sometimes play crude games of football with another set of indentured porch-climbers and skin our knees on the cinders and gouge bits of bottle glass out of our shins.

"A near-faced ex-fighter who had played some football for the Pleasure A. C. used to run a bar-room near the dump and, sometimes, when business was slack and no drifters were hoisting themselves of hootch in the damp stench of his shack, Curley would bang up his apron and come across lots to show us how to crouch with our legs interlocked, or how to fling our bodies across a pair of legs and run with our cheats curled over our knees."

One Man's Thwart, Another's Opportunity

THE PRINCETON MAN SAID, "THESE synthetic scholarships can only father failure."

"Yes," said the Pitt man, "that was the way it was in our end of town. I was fairly handy with a football, and sometimes, when the gang was down stealing cigarets from the Dutchman, I would sit on Curley's empty kegs and watch him snap the nipples off his bottle-goods and ring some barfly's coin on the marble apron of his cash-till to listen for its silver content. When he wasn't heaving some pestiferous rumpot through the ears of his swinging doors, we would talk football, and he'd say, 'Kid, you got the makings. The swing of your hips is natural, and them hands are fine for passing.'

"One September night Curley was sopping up the beer puddles on his cheery-wood bar and, after rinsing the rag in his slop-

N.E. Trade Holding Steady

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Weekly reviews of New England business conditions coming to hand today just about hold their own with those of last week. Neither startling gains nor discouraging losses are in evidence, and the impression gained from careful reading of them is that while nothing spectacular is in store over coming months there is no reason to expect the trade line to slip under the levels of a year ago.

One of the inconsistencies in the picture last week is in process of being remedied, and should bring improvement in retail distribution, thus creating a better basis for a well-sustained fall trade. This is borne out by Dun & Bradstreet reports of better store sales and improved demand from other wholesale lines. Textiles in this section are quiet with the same source noting a decline in new orders. Cotton mills of cardial operations as weavers of woolen are feeling the effects of a decline in new orders.

The CIO has won its first big test in this section. All others are minor when compared with the selection by Lawrence woolen and worsted workers of Mr. Lewis' organization as their sole collective bargaining agency. The surprising thing is that so little fuss accompanied the election. The management of the company involved, congratulated by union leaders in advance on its splendid attitude, is taking the result most calmly and confines its comments to a hope that the friendly relations now enjoyed with employes will continue. Regardless of what one's personal ideas may be on organization of mill workers it must be admitted that the Hillman branch of the CIO certainly conducted itself within the spirit as well as the letter of amicable relations with an employer. And the latter may well be proud of the esteem in which it is held by those leading the forces of workers.

As for the longer range implications of the Lawrence election, it seems to this writer that it is safe to look forward to the day when the textile industry will be stabilized. The impetus of victory is charmed and what were once industrial battlefields may be the path as though conjured away by a magician's wand. Other leading mills are sure to fall in line. And it is not too much to vision the day when cotton textile workers will also join organized labor's ranks.

Today's stock market should provide a test of the underlying position after a brief period of rising prices after severe decline. And it will if one can judge by the manner in which trading started off. All that we ask is that either today or tomorrow prices slip under the lows of Thursday on decidedly smaller dealings. In other words, if volume is able to dry up as prices recede it will be considered strong proof that there are few if any panicky holders of stocks left. We will then look for an upward move. Following a zigzag path which may culminate in the 171-173 area.

Since the writer is a confirmed believer in the idea that the average man is with us once more, stocks is neither constitutionally fit nor in a preferred position to take suggestions to heart. We made here resolutionary and will reservations. Also the risks of such tactics are so great that it is doubtful the average person has a right to assume them. With these things in mind the better quality operating and holding companies the good market rate and the equity indications point to be the best trading medium in the event a market test is born a satisfactory.

Notebook: The cigarette stocks are gaining friends. Consumption is said to be increasing, prices of raw stock tending downward and retail prices look to be on firm ground . . . All of which spells the return of profits lost in 1936 . . . Big investment accounts will probably be kept on a small scale, but smallish investors might well await the definite formation of a long-term base of investment . . . Retail shares are more in favor than in some time . . . Allied and Macy cover the price range nicely and are looked on with favor by rail holding.

RAILS Lead Stocks LOWER

DEALINGS SLOW

New York Sept. 17—Rallying rail stocks of yesterday's market went into reverse today and many leaders skidded for declines running to 3 points or so at the worst. Few issues were able to get ahead, although extreme losses were reduced somewhat around noon. Dealings were exceptionally slow throughout.

It was an off-day in the bond department, with corporation loans inclined to point downward. Commodities were uneven.

On the losing side the greater part of the attention was shares of Santa Fe, Boston & Maine, Central Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pullman, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Steel & Tube, Chrysler, General Motors, Radio, Westinghouse Electric, Truax-Traer Coal, Union Oil, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Texas Corporation, International Paper & Power preferred.

Motors on the whole ignited their most serious forecasts from automotive centers and plans presented by the unions to General Motors as being intended to display "moderate" attitudes.

On the cheerful side of the market picture was the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet, which found retail store sales continuing to point the usual fall proportions.

Increase in distribution over the Labor Day week-end was reported to be 4 to 10 per cent and 8 to 20 per cent above the corresponding period last year.

The survey stressed the vigor of trade in agricultural regions and reported that there has been considerable purchases to large orders by country mercantile.

Meanwhile, the Engineering News-Record estimated construction awards for the week ending Sept. 14 were $29,546,000 under the same 1936 week. August rubber consumption now registered a drop of more than 15,000 tons from July and about 5000 tons from August a year ago.

Canadian trade was up 40% for the month of August, rents in initial foreign currency transactions and clearings was 11-16 higher at $4,583,710,16.

Rural Retail Sales Increase

The Department of Commerce reported today daily average sales of general merchandise in small towns and rural areas during August were about 30% higher in dollar volume than in August, 1936, and approximately 9 per cent higher than in July this year.

CITES Encouraging FACTS

FORBES FEELS CONFIDENT

By B. C. FORBES

Returning to this country after weeks of absence, one can note several highly encouraging developments.

Congress exhibited an increasing spirit of independence towards the end of its session.

Stock traders formerly all the rage have practically disappeared, and are not likely again to come into vogue.

Our major crops have done very well, with every indication that farm income will be the best in years.

Washington is at last exhibiting some concern over the welfare of the many millions of individuals and business units who have invested savings in securities.

DIVIDENDS IMPROVE

Improved dividend declarations lately have been numerous.

Exceptional has been trade head way notably in manufacturing industries.

Relief expenditures are contracting rather than expanding.

The people's savings mount, standing freer spending are easing.

Real estate values in many places are recovering.

Significant manifestations that public sentiment is veering away from embitterment of upset, ring from embitterment of upset, ring from embitterment of upset, ring

Money to Loan

Pay "Back Bills" this easy way

Why not eliminate accumulated bills by means of a loan under the Shawmut Monthly Payment Plan? Instead of large, immediate drains on income, payments are "spread" over an extended period. Available to Boston and nearby communities, responsible persons may now borrow on this plan at a lower cost than ever before, with systematic repayment over an extended period. You need not be a depositor to use this service, available at our main office and at our sixteen Shawmut branches.

LOANS REDUCED COST
Household's new 3-2-1 rate means this—On the first $300 of any loan you repay in 3 months, the charge is 2% a month or less; on the next $300 or part thereof the rate is 1% a month; on the next $400 or part thereof the rate is ½ of 1% a month. That's the most any borrower will pay. Phone or call.

1787--The Constitution--1937

One Hundred and Fifty Years of Liberty, Democracy and Sanity.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY years ago today the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia gave to the world a charter of liberties which contained in spirit and letter all that the human race had blindly groped toward for thousands of years.

That charter was THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

With the Bill of Rights, which was declared in force in 1791, that document broke with Europe completely; broke with all past forms of ecclesiastical and political tyranny, and pointed the way for A NEW DAY in the calendar of man's progress.

For the FIRST TIME in the history of man THE STATE was made subservient to THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE.

For the FIRST TIME in the history of man a people had a WRITTEN GUARANTEE of its natural civil and religious liberties which could not be annulled by the decree of a ruler.

The Constitution that the founding fathers gave us one hundred and fifty years ago today was built on the solid rock of the RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL MAN.

OUR great document has withstood the bitter political battles of the Jefferson-Hamilton era, the battering-ram of civil war, the earthquakes of five depressions and the endless attempts of sinister forces to sabotage it.

So great was the spiritual force of that Constitution that it affected the attitude of every government in the world toward its subjects.

Two years after the Constitution was written the French Revolution began.

The document's simple, clear-cut, condensed statements of human rights shook the foundations of England, Germany, Italy and FINALLY CHANGED THE FORM OF ALL GOVERNMENTS IN SOUTH AMERICA AND EVEN IN ASIA.

WASHINGTON, the CONSTITUTION and AMERICA were three words on every lip in the world.

The dream of oppressed mankind had at last come true—A CHARTER OF FREEDOM!

THE travail that brought forth the Constitution is revealed in James Madison's diary of the convention.

All history had been ransacked by the members of that convention. Every possible form of government had been discussed.

Before the minds of those men the past came up for judgment.

Their minds, bodies and souls sweated through a frightful Summer.

Over it all presided with the calmness of an Olympian god he who had made that convention possible—GEORGE WASHINGTON.

And when that convention of 55 delegates from twelve States adjourned on September 17, 1787, out of those Titanic labors had come the greatest PROCLAMATION OF FREEDOM the world has ever known.

AND TODAY?

There stands our Constitution in all its mighty strength in a world that has torn up constitutions, agreements, treaties and which seems about to revert to jungle law.

There stands our Constitution INTACT because in back of it stands the granite-jawed determination of the American people that a Constitution of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the earth or be eaten away piecemeal by crackpots.

No matter how old you are, Americans, you have lived ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS today.

This is your SESQUICENTENNIAL!

Read your Constitution, celebrate, and take a solemn oath before your God to PRESERVE AND DEFEND IT TO THE DEATH!

New England Gladly Joins

A NATIONAL tribute in which New England will gladly join is that to the Gold Star Mothers of America proposed by President Roosevelt.

The President asks that Sunday, September 26, be observed in honor of the American mothers whose sons have died in the service of their country.

His proclamation, calling for suitable observances in churches, homes and elsewhere, says:

"The American Gold Star Mothers suffered the supreme sacrifice of motherhood in the World War."

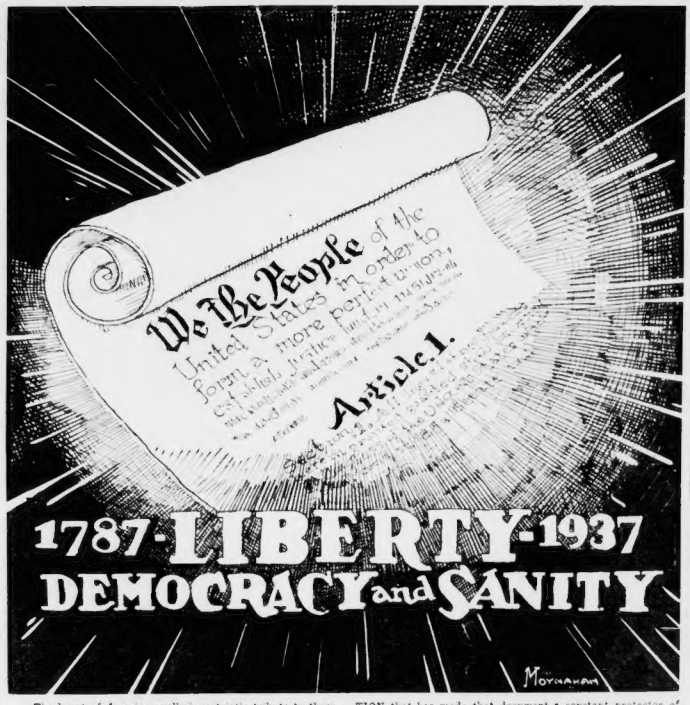
The observance will come appropriately in the wake of the American Legion National Convention in New York City, in the course of which the men who served America and survived will have rededicated themselves to the memory and principles of their comrades who died in arms.

We cannot properly honor the soldier boys who laid down their lives for us in the battles of the Great War. We must content ourselves with decorating their graves and remembering them in our thoughts.

We can, however, shower tokens of our national affection on their mothers who still live. We can show them all the kindness and esteem that we as a grateful nation owe their hero sons. That, indeed, is our duty.

Our Constant Protector

By John Moynahan



The heart of America swells in patriotic tribute to those who framed the Constitution of the United States—and in reverent and sincere gratitude for the DIVINE INSPIRATION that has made that document a constant protector of HUMAN RIGHTS for one hundred and fifty years. Rightfully, as thankful citizens, we rejoice.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 17—Thoughts while strolling: Modern motherhood—pushing a pram and smoking a cigarette. . . . Charles Laughton's version of King Henry VIII will be his best performance to date. . . . Most chosen Dora Herod and that hatred little fellow Ben Drake now the drama critic. . . . Lookalikes: Harry Richman and Lord Beaverbrook. . . . A. E. Wynn's bride with a pompadour could have passed for Lillian Russell of 20 years ago. . . . Observation: No one can listen more earnestly than a Negro. Jacob Ruppert is the gloomiest looking oldster in town. . . .

Martha Ostenso sounds like the signoff of an old gal. . . . Billy Seaman joins the dachshund fanciers. It's almost impossible to believe Neysa McMein is as bored as she looks. When there are wider pants pleats, Clifton Webb will wear them. . . . T. at lovely yesteryear star, Christie MacDonald. . . .

Babe Ruth's golf togs suggest a drawing by James Thurber. Anyway, no one has had much more fun out of politics than Al Smith. Unless it is Jimmy Walker. The Capitol Theater cloned and completely done over in a week is the top in quick decorating. Four shifts of workers. . . .

No job in the modern whirl demands such perfect sense of timing as the posts held by minute men in the control rooms of broadcasting studios. They must keep things going to the actual split second or jam up an expensive program. The greatest of fears is for an actor to muff a cue—if he doesn't recover quickly the program may as well be scrapped, for things almost invariably go from bad to worse. . . .

A good ad libber such as Fred Allen can gloss over a bad wobble, but there are not many Fred Aliens. The minute men operate by flashing signals much in the manner of finger manipulations in the old Curb Market in Broad street. . . .

The sale of one of New York's most historic theaters, the New Amsterdam, at a dinky price was almost lost among the real estate briefs recently. . . .

The New Amsterdam was long home of the most successful Ziegfeld productions—the various Follies, Sally, etc. Also the key of the great Erlanger chain. Next to it perhaps the Belasco was the most beautiful of the legits. . . .

The Maxine Elliott was also attractive but the Empire was not. . . .

Shortly before soon the old Amsterdam foyer was a meeting place of the Broadway theater set—such as Rennold Wolf, Julie Judge, Charlie Somerville and Eugene Kelsey Allen. The latter's name also pronounced those for to sign up a player with Ziegfeld as Erlanger possessed made them. There was Marilyn Douglass, house manager who wrote jingles for St. Valentine's day. . . .

Big names in the theatrical world seemed to radiate from the New Amsterdam. . . .

The decline of the legitimate theater is not as many producers would have us believe due entirely to the growth of the movie. The producers brought much of their trouble on themselves. They forgot the public was getting a new entertainment order. Their theaters were small cramped and unattractive. Unless they did diffuse and only Winthrop Ames thought of serving free coffee in the lounge at intermission. . . .

Those who went to the box offices for seats were greeted by supercilious snobs and plainly "You poor Rube. No good seats for sale here." . . .

The moment a show was a hit the choicest seats went to the agencies at whatever the tariff would stand. Illusion lost in cold commercialism. . . .

The first theater I visited in New York was the Globe during its early popularity under the Dillingham management. In comparison to theaters in Cincinnati it was tremendously tiny and inhospitable. But I shall never forget Fred Stone's spectacular entrance—perhaps the most spectacular up to that time. . . .

He was supposed to be making home brew in the basement of his home and there was a terrific explosion with Stone shooting up through the floor like a rocket, covered with foam and grinning: "I put in one raisin too many." . . .

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

Another day gone, and what has it brought you?

NOTHING!

And all your lifetime that's what it's been—nothing! Oh you've had your daily bread, and a few friends, and a few pleasures, but that's not what you want. You want more—you want all your dreams come true! You want people to love you, and admire you, and envy you, and write you a check!

Why not?

BECAUSE YOU DON'T REALLY WANT A CHANCE.

You think you do . . . you say you do . . . but if someone actually offered you a chance you'd make a mess of it. Within a month, you'd be back in the same old rut—AND GLAD OF IT.

You don't believe that, do you? But look yourself over, analyze yourself forthrift, and you'll see that it's true.

You say that you want a fresh chance. But step and think what that change would imply. First, it would imply CHANGE. And you don't like change.

A FRESH START

Yes, you'd like nicer clothes, a handsomer car, a finer house. But you don't want to make any changes IN YOURSELF.

You don't want to throw away old ideas, old habits, old prejudices, and develop new ones.

Watch yourself when someone criticizes you . . . suggests some new method of doing your work . . . hints that you're getting stale . . . says something that smokes you . . . says you'd do something you don't like. Watch how much you hate change . . . you make excuses, alibis, you defend stubbornly. But when you've cooled down you realize that right there is your chance, and you've muffed it.

Then there's Risk. A fresh chance is always a gamble. You can't absolutely know how it's going to turn out. You'll be taking a step into the dark—perhaps. You're bound to feel apprehensive, and anxious, and fright miserable and lonely for a while.

But it be worth it? How can you be sure that you'll ever again be safe and happy?

Ah, there's RESPONSIBILITY. That fresh chance always implies more or different responsibilities. You've tied up your present situation with a lot of worries you . . . But you wouldn't feel at home without them. Maybe you'd be lonesome.

NEEDLESS FEARS

Then, people might blame you if it were still rough at you. You go loose simply at the very thought!

CHANGE . . . RISK . . . RESPONSIBILITY—you can't make a fresh start without taking all these hurdles. Are you still sure you want to do it . . . still certain you won't shrink yourself out of that rut and get going?

There's a little book just out, for twenty-five cents. It's called "YOURS TO VENTURE" by Robert R. Updegraf. It's neither upstage nor highbrow—but it tells what ails most of us better than many a university course. Better read it. Over and over it repeats that fundamental law of living—"EXPOSE YOURSELF TO EXPERIENCE"—crawl out from your comfortable rut and face the pain, peril and penalty of REBIRTH!

How old are you?

You are as ancient as your cowardly contentment and as young as your brave discontent!

This Troubled World

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

Considering that there are rather more than 350,000,000 persons in China, considering the power and ruthlessness of Japan, and considering further the historic import of aerial warfare, you have a picture of a crucial moment in the life of the race.

And the 350,000,000 put their material defense in the hands of a woman. Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the generalissimo, is secretary-general of China's aeronautical committee and, with full authority, drafts and executes China's air war.

The charming and cultured daughter of Mustapha Kemal, ruler of Turkey, flies fighting planes and bombs the enemy, nothing wars against desert tribes, dashed in and out of the Sahara, the dues commissioners, and plays and sings beautifully for the fatherland after her long hunting and flying.

Our women haven't taken up bombing yet, but there would if they had to. The Bureau of Air Commerce now has a number of women fliers on its staff flying around the country, making inspection trips.

Among them is Mrs. Nancy Hickman Love of Boston, retired and personable matron, who hails from England as a married girl named Nancy Hickman, acquiring citizenship by marriage.

THEY'RE REAL WOMEN

These women are not Amazons. They are the embodiment of feminine graces. Mme. Chiang is a Wellesley and Mrs. Love to Vassar. This modern world is blasting some hoary old ideas to the opposite. Barak and Deborah.

But it does show that, even in Bible days, women would stand up for their man and their side with whatever weapons they had. There is, of course, great technical progress to be noted in the range from Jael's tent peg to the modern bombing plane. But nothing to boast about over on the part of the sexes.

Women's courage may be soundly acclaimed. But what of the race that still finds it necessary to place in their hands such a dominant weapon as a bombing plane? We have nurtured the thought that women were the conservators and guardians of the mystic life forces.

There is tragic irony about their participation in air warfare.

The same race that made the bombing plane is now mobilizing scientists all over the world to combat plagues that arise in war, already beginning to show in China.

CEASELESS CONFLICT

In the sub-microscopic world, where combat goes on as in our world, germs which were war cultures of forty years ago are now set in against the germs unleashed in our new war. In 1897 a British soldier, infected with typhus, supplied the virus which, through thousands of generations of descendants, now pervade the most effective germs ever bred.

The United States Army Medical Center at Washington had to have a more virulent strain to fight the fresh army of killers now on the march. They found it not only in the strain from the Spanish war, but in the strain of typhus which, supplied the virus which, through thousands of generations of descendants, now pervade the most effective germs ever bred.

GERMS VS. MAN

There is irony and despair then of a placid and beautiful Soviet as a summer day—sunshine, peace, happy days and evening breeze. There there is a sudden satanic reason to the life and death of man. Germs and men, at war, in the land of Anton in the Forest of the Bible.

GERMS VS. MAN

There is irony and despair then of a placid and beautiful Soviet as a summer day—sunshine, peace, happy days and evening breeze. There there is a sudden satanic reason to the life and death of man. Germs and men, at war, in the land of Anton in the Forest of the Bible.

Dr. O. Howard, former chief of the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture, and now consulting entomologist, has declared that germs and insects would conquer the world if man should cease to war with them, and it was perhaps an even thought that they would unite. To prevent a few men from waging war and preparing war our country, says Dr. Howard, must be prepared.

"We are spoiled children here in America," he said. "We do not begin to realize our advantages or our opportunities.

"We cannot be indifferent to the disasters of the rest of the world, but we can. If we will take account of our resources, material and spiritual, be assured of safety and well-being if we make sensible use of what we have.

"We are safe from attack. If we make reasonable provision for defense; we are among the few people of the world who have proven their ability to govern themselves; we still have enormous resources and possess both a magnificent technical establishment and technical creativeness.

"We have nurtured the desire nor the need for foreign conquest. America can, and I believe will, avoid the world's ills by sanity by putting its own house in order and keeping it safe."

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

A writer in Washington, D. C., inquires of this column how an upright, professional radical can contrive to live the life of Reason. He says that he notes that such men as Karl Marx, Leon Trotsky, Norman Thomas and John L. Lewis, for instance, seem to be the victims of a neurotic despised and berated captains of industry.

Indeed, I've often wondered how such a powerful agency of humanity could find the time to ease themselves around the world at their level, lecturing, writing and giving away free their patent medicines for what ails us, and to fly in airplanes, automobiles and Pullmans.

This ELECT CLASS seem to be on a perpetual leave of absence from their normal jobs—if any.

A western congressman said some years ago that there was no more profitable racket than uplifting the proletariat. He was, of course, retired to private life for THAT.

The news that the Japanese, who now are the masters of Peiping, are preparing to restore the cult of Confucius is a shrewd move on their part, for Confucius taught OBEDIENCE, and that is what all conquerors must have.

Confucius lived about 500 B. C. He had an idea that if only the tyrannical and corrupt rulers of the then Chinese states were to live up to his home-grown maxims why, Presto! they would become good men and, instead, they would rule well.
